

FLIES TEN MILES
IN BROKEN AIRSHIPCaptain Baldwin's Machine Made Successful Trip and Even Astonished St. Louis.THOUGH MOTOR BROKE SHIP REMAINED IN AIRAerial Navigator Declares He Could
Have Brought Ship to Earth
Whenever He Wished to do so, But Wished to Finish
the Trip.

St. Louis, October 25.—Propelled part of the way by its own power and the remainder of the distance by the wind, which was blowing at 10 miles an hour, The Arrow, an airship owned and perfected by Thomas S. Baldwin, of San Francisco, in charge of A. Roy Knabenshue, of Toledo, today made an unannounced flight of 10 miles from the fair grounds across the Mississippi river to Cayoh, Ill.

The aerial performance attracted the attention of thousands of persons, who cheered almost continuously as the big flying machine passed over the exposition grounds and soared high above the buildings of the business quarter of St. Louis.

Clinging to the framework, his precarious foothold, an iron tube that forms one side of the base of the triangular network of supports and ribs of The Arrow's body, Knabenshue directed the movements of the flying machine and maneuvered in circles and against the wind high over the great buildings of the exposition, before an accident to the motor rendered the big fan propellers useless and curtailed his command of direction, but not of suspension or descent.

Steered Without Motor.

When the motor broke, Knabenshue maneuvered the flying machine into the wind, and he was enabled to steer the Arrow in a course that varied several points either way from the trend of the wind and to land at a point of his own selecting.

When within 10 feet of the earth Knabenshue threw out his grapple and one of the hooks caught in a large tree. The large balloon settled slowly to the ground, resting lightly on its frame work. Knabenshue alighted, secured the airship to prevent injury from the wind and assured Mr. Baldwin by telephone that the Arrow was uninjured, except for the minor breakage of the motor.

After landing Knabenshue said that in his opinion the trial of the airship was a distinct success. He said that he could have brought the flying machine to the ground at any time, but that he could not to a certain extent, control its movements and that as he felt himself in no danger, he decided to continue the flight and demonstrate that, even though the motor was broken, the Arrow could be controlled.

The flight occupied exactly one hour. The motor broke about fifteen minutes after the airship left the aeromarine course.

The airship was constructed under the personal supervision of Captain Baldwin in California and differs in many features from ships constructed in the past. On the ship Captain Baldwin places his hopes of winning the $100,000 prize at the fair.

The gas balloon is cigar shaped, of Japanese silk, 54 feet long and 17 feet in diameter, and requires 8,000 cubic feet of gas to inflate it. The frame attachment is 30 feet long.

It carries a double cylinder, 7-horsepower gasoline engine, making 2,000 revolutions of the propellers a minute possible. The machine is arranged so that the ship is pulled instead of pushed.

Today's flight was not a trial for the world's fair $100,000 prize. Captain Baldwin said, but simply a trial to convince the residents of St. Louis and the world's fair visitors that he had an airship that could fly.

FIRST RAIN SINCE AUGUST.

Augusta Experiences Shower and Mills May Resume.

Augusta, Ga., October 25.—(Special.)—Tonight, little after 10 o'clock, began the first rain that Augusta has enjoyed since August 15. There is not a cotton mill in Augusta running, as for several weeks there has not been water enough in the river to fill the canal. The trolley car power house is operated by steam, instead of water power, and the line of river boats are tied up at their wharves.

JOYNER IN CHATTANOOGA.

That City Asks Him to Buy Horses
for Them.

Chattanooga, Tenn., October 25.—(Special.)—Chief W. R. Joyner, of the Atlanta fire department, passed through this city yesterday, en route to Indianapolis to purchase horses for his department. Chief McQuade, of the Chattanooga department, met Chief Joyner at the depot and had a conference with him relative to the latter making some purchases for the Chattanooga department.

Cotton House Burns.

Hiberton, Ga., October 25.—(Special.)—The cotton house of Clark Mattox, who lives about 4 miles from Hiberton, was destroyed by fire last night, supposed to have been caused by an incendiary. The house contained seven bales of cotton and several tons of hay. There was no insurance. The fire follows close on that of Coy Hudsons, who lives a quarter of a mile, and of other fires of recent date.

Big Shipment of Chestnuts.

Knoxville, Tenn., October 25.—A shipment of four car loads of chestnuts, gathered in the North Carolina mountains, was forwarded from Johnson City, Tenn., to Baltimore today. They are to supply the demand in Baltimore.

M'CUE, WEEPING,
HIDES HIS FACETrial of Alleged Wife Murderer
Now Taking Place.Brother of Defendant Testifies That When His Brother Was Informed of the Finding of His Wife, He Exclaimed "O,
My Darling Wife."

Charlottesville, Va., October 25.—The attorneys for ex-Mayor McCue, charged with the murder of his wife, who announced last yesterday that because of the illness of Mr. Harmon, chief counsel for the defendant, that they felt they could not proceed further, stated at the opening of the court today that they had decided to go on.

Dr. Frank McCue, a brother of the defendant, was the first witness. He was called to the home of the accused about 9:15 on the night of the tragedy.

He said when he got inside the house he met the brother now on trial at the staircase, who said to him that there was some one in the house who had attacked him and probably "had got Fannie," his wife.

He detailed the finding of the dead body of Mrs. McCue, clad in a night robe, in the bath tub on the second floor, and described the wounds, there being one on the right ear, another on the left side of the nose and a gunshot wound in the breast. The water was running in the tub at the time.

Oh! My Darling Wife.

On coming out of the bath room, witness told his brother of the finding when the latter exclaimed:

"Oh! my darling wife."

As the witness repeated this, the accused buried his face in a handkerchief and burst into tears. The witness also told of the finding of a gun and a baseball in the bath room, the latter bearing a red stain near the end. The exhibits were identified by witness.

The gun is a repeating shotgun. Witness believed his brother came into the doorway of the bath room and saw the dead body. On entering the bath room the odor of burnt gunpowder was present; witness said. On meeting his brother in the house he asked where his wife was, when the accused said to him, "Go look for Fannie."

Mr. McCue said, on cross-examination, that his brother complained of pain in his head and that blood was dripping from his nose, which would result from an injury to the head and that the wound on his brother's head was such as would be made by a blunt instrument. The witness was questioned as to the nature and effect of wounds produced by a sand bag.

Dr. Venable's Story.

Dr. C. S. Venable, who was at the McCue residence shortly after the tragedy occurred, characterized the wound on the defendant's head as an abrasion. He found no other wounds on McCue's head. He, too, was questioned regarding sand bag wounds.

The defendant in reply to him had explained that some one rushed in and that it all happened so quickly. A number of people had gathered at the house when he arrived. The accused, he said, complained of pain in the back of his head, but on examination he found no external marks of violence. He did not observe blood coming from the defendant's nose and in reply to counsel said a wound such as that on the defendant's head would not produce unconsciousness, in his judgment. When he saw the accused the day following the tragedy he was perfectly rational.

Wound Th Breast Described.

Dr. Venable said that Mrs. McCue's night robe was not blood-stained until after her body had been turned over. The wound on the back of her head, he said, might have been made by contact with the bath tub, but the one on the ear he thought to have been made with some blunt instrument. The gun shot wound in the breast, he said, was an inch long and badly wounded, indicating very close range. It was of such a character that death would be practically instantaneous. The wound from the shell had lodged against the spinal column.

He gave it as his opinion that the wound could not have been inflicted with the gun. Mrs. McCue in the position in which she was found and said he did not believe she could have stepped into the tub after having been shot, as he did not think more than a half-dozen heart beats followed the shot which entered the breast.

On the day following the shooting he testified that he discovered finger marks on Mrs. McCue's neck, made, in his opinion, by a left hand; also a broken finger nail on one hand.

The defendant did not touch the dead body of his wife to the knowledge of the witness.

New York, October 25.—S. C. T. Dodd, of counsel for the Standard Oil Company,
authorized today the following statement:

"In view of the many false and misleading statements from various sources,
the directors of the Standard Oil Company deem it advisable to state to the company's shareholders and the public that neither now or at any time has the Standard Oil Company or any of its constituent companies been interested in any business not directly related with and necessary to the petroleum trade.

"It would be almost impossible to designate in this denial the different classes of business with which irresponsible parties have coupled the Standard Oil Company's name, but it may not be amiss to specify copper, steel, banks, railroads and gas (other than natural gas) as being most prominently mentioned.

With none of these affairs has the Standard Oil Company been at any time connected. Individual members of the Standard Oil Company have been and are interested as individuals in various enterprises, but this is entirely outside of the business of the Standard Oil Company, which is alone oil, unaffected by other interests in which its stockholders may invest.

Rockefeller Took No Part.

"Neither is it true that the Standard Oil Company's president, John D. Rockefeller, or any other officer of the Standard Oil Company, has taken part in securing the nomination of any of the candidates for office as is so positively stated.

"Furthermore, it is entirely untrue that there is any 'Standard Oil party' banded together for speculation in stocks, as is so commonly charged. The name of the Standard Oil Company is frequently used by designing persons in the manipulation of the stock market, but its use is unwarranted. The Standard Oil Company departs from its usual custom in making this denial for the reason that the statements made at this time by newspapers, magazines and sensational public speakers appear to be unusually mendacious and may, to a great extent, mislead the public."

BRITISH DEMANDS
GIVEN NO ANSWERCZAR'S REGRETS
WIRED TO KINGRussian Ruler Makes Unofficial Apology.No Report Has Yet Been Received at Russian Admiralty From Officers of Baltic Fleet Despite Frantic Efforts to Get Dispatches.

St. Petersburg, October 26—2:50 a. m.—
Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's reason for firing into the British fishing fleet remains as great a mystery as ever. At midnight the admiralty announced that no official report had been received.

Meanwhile, without waiting for the Russian version of the affair, Emperor Nicholas, through Ambassador Harding, has sent to King Edward and the British government a message expressing the profoundest regret for the unfortunate affair coupled with assurances that the families of the victims should receive the fullest reparation.

The British government also shows moderation in the note which Sir Charles Harding presented to Foreign Minister Lamsdorff this afternoon. While it awaits explanation for an act which it characterizes in strong language as unjustifiable, unjust and inhuman, it makes no threats, fixes no time limit for response and contains no demands, the note specifically stating that Great Britain's demands are reserved pending receipt of an explanation.

An Ominous Ring.

The willingness of Great Britain to await the Russian explanation before formulating demands shows "consideration" for the situation in which Russia has been placed by a deplorable blunder. At the same time this consideration has an ominous ring about it, only serving to emphasize the gravity of the situation.

What the nature of the demands will be must necessarily be a matter of speculation until Admiral Rojestvensky's report arrives, but if the important allegation in the note is established, namely, that the squadron actually changed fire before opening fire, it would seem to fix the responsibility upon Rojestvensky; and whoever the author of the offense may be, it is regarded as certain that Great Britain will demand, among other things, his punishment. It is also considered certain that failure to promptly comply with the demands will be immediately followed by Ambassador Harding's recall.

Amicable Adjustment.

Although some nervousness is perceptible in diplomatic circles, generally speaking, there is the greatest confidence both among diplomats and high officials of the government that the affair will be amicably adjusted.

It is known that the emperor has already expressed a determination to punish whoever is responsible for the error.
A tour of the embassies and legations this afternoon showed that the sentiment was almost unanimous that Russia would make every reparation and that the incident would be adjusted unless Great Britain's demands should be unreasonable, which it was not thought would be the case.

DECLARED DELIBERATE ACT

London, October 26.—A dispatch from respondent, as the result of his investigation, is of the opinion that the attack on the British trawlers by the Russian second Pacific squadron was a deliberate act, perpetrated with knowledge of its character.

senting the reorganized company. There were no other bidders. The plant was sold in two parcels and the minimum fixed by the court was paid in each instance $550,000.

Charles M. Schwab said it was the purpose of the committee to continue to operate the local plant.

coffins, at as many as three railroad stations in the neighborhood.

wounded.

Have Nothing to Say Official-

London, October 25.—The inevitable delay of diplomatic procedure appear to retard a complete and satisfactory settlement of the acute differences between Great Britain and Russia arising from the deplorable North sea affair. King Edward has received a message from Emperor Nicholas himself, expressing the deepest regret and a practical acknowledgement that Great Britain's peremp-tory note will meet with a reply conceding every demand for an apology for the act of the Russians against the British flag, compensation for sufferers and punishment of the officers responsible for what is everywhere conceded to have been a gigantic blunder, and the Russian ambassador to the court of St.
James has expressed to Foreign Minister Lansdowne his sorrow and sympathy.

Admiralty Shows Activity.

These developments, which came late in the day, have allayed to some extent the deep resentment in the public mind, and the admiralty tonight gave evidence of its appreciation of the necessity of proving that it is prepared actively to support the position of the people of Great Britain and fulfill the expectations of the world, when it issued the following statement:

"On receipt on October 24 of the news of the North sea tragedy, preliminary orders for mutual support and cooperation were issued as a measure of precaution from the admiralty to the chancel, Mediterranean and home fleets."

Almost momentarily the public expected some definite announcement of an official nature, but late this evening the foreign office announced that no further statement would be issued tonight.
It is understood that this is because it is considered that it would be unwise, in the present state of public feeling, to make any intermediate proclamations concerning diplomatic proceedings in view of Great Britain's announcement to Russia that the matter would not brook delay.

No Display of Rowdiness.

Count Benckendorff, the Russian ambassador, was occupied until late tonight at the embassy with a mass of cipher dispatches; and it was announced at the embassy that it would be physically impossible to prepare a formal reply in such a short time.

While Great Britain is stirred to its depths, there has not been the slightest evidence of a repetition of the rowdy-ism of last night which is condemned on all sides. The suggestion that Ambassador Benckendorff's visit to Lan-downe house instead of to Downing street was due to the fears of mob violence, is indignantly denied at the foreign office and at the embassy.

Popular appreciation of the situation,
however, was evidenced when King Edward appeared in public today. He was greeted with more than usual enthusiasm on account of the decided tone of his telegram to the mayor of Hull on Monday.

The speeches of members of the cabinet and of the house of commons today in different parts of the country voice the sentiment of Great Britain, and the spirit in which the utterances were met shows that for the moment party differences have been laid aside and that the country is solidly behind the government. Lord Selborne, at the Pilgrim's banquet tonight, denounced the Dogger bank affair in the most outspoken terms yet heard from a member of the cabinet as an "inexcusable outrage and a terrible blunder which would be impossible in either the British or the American navy."

Strong Words from Lyttleton.

Colonial Secretary Lyttleton, too, in another place, spoke in plain terms, saying that it was impossible to view the affair as other than the result of murderous intention or wicked negligence.
The postmortem examination of the bodies of the victims of the Dogger bank affair was held today at Hull. The proceedings were purely formal and no official announcement was made, but it is stated positively that both of the dead men bore wounds inflicted both by machine guns and a larger shell.

RUSH ORDERS HURRIED

TO THE BRITISH FLEET

LONDON, October 25.—The admiralty tonight issued the following:
On receipt October 24 of the news of the North sea tragedy, preliminary orders for mutual support and cooperation were issued, as a measure of precaution, from the admiralty to the chancel, Mediterranean and home fleets.
The admiralty is understood to be taking measures for the protection of British trawlers in the Bay of Biscay. Besides notifying St.
Petersburg of the presence of trawlers there, it is thought probable that a warship may be dispatched from Gibraltar to watch over the fishermen.

PHILANDER KNOX TO THE RESCUE

An Alleged Trustbuster Attacks Parker and Cleveland.

Former Attorney General Who Made Roosevelt's Grand Stand Play Against Railroad Merger Charges Change of Front to Great Democrats.

Washington, October 25.—Senator P. C. Knox, who was until recently attorney general under President Roosevelt, tonight issued a statement in answer to Mr. Parker's speech on trusts and ex-President Cleveland's remarks on the same topic. Mr. Knox accuses both Messrs. Cleveland and Parker of having changed front on the trust question, and asks:

"Is there any connection between Judge Parker's abandonment of his futile common law panacea, which meant immunity to the trusts, and the fact, as he alleges, that the trusts contribute to the success of the republican party? Do the principles of law which Mr. Cleveland thought last March protected manufacturing monopolies change in October, and if so, does the change affect the Belmont trusts, or only those suspected of seeing in the perpetuation of republican administration the continued general prosperity of the country?"

Mr. Knox refers to Judge Parker's charges of corruption in politics and says:

"When Parker last actively participated in politics, the bench was chairman of the New York state democratic committee, which elected David B. Hill as governor. He was a cog in the Hill machine. There never have been in our political history methods which corrupted more elections than the Hill machine in New York, and they culminated in the steal of the state by the Maynard frauds, and the overthrow of the Hill machine in consequence. This was the machine which Mr. Parker ran until, as a reward for running it, he was made a judge by Hill, and there are the methods he deprecates."

Mr. Knox asserts that Tammany hall is supported by corporate favoritism and that "Judge Parker is now seeking to be beneficiary of the very methods which he affects to denounce."

Mr. Knox charges that the men who are conducting Judge Parker's campaign represent the corporations, and mentions August Belmont, W. F. Sheehan, Thomas F. Ryan, David B. Hill and Thomas Taggart as men who "own their whole power in politics to the intimate connection they have established between the management of corporations and the management of public business."

Mr. Knox asserts that Judge Parker and Mr. Hill are adding to the support of the corporations, "with reckless disregard of the interests of the public."

Mr. Knox says: "Judge Parker's statement that the president and the trusts combined in an effort to satisfy the country that the trusts were opposed to the present administration is singularly preposterous and smacks of the rashness of desperation."

WHY APPENDICITIS?

Why is appendicitis so common today? Because we have got into the pernicious habit of eating too fast. Dr. Curtis, the great authority on this disease, says: "Appendicitis often follows the eating of a very heavy, or particularly large or indigestible meal. After carefully following a foolish custom, you can ensure your safety by taking Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. It is an accepted, scientific truth, which admits of no dispute, that if you will only keep your digestive apparatus in good order you will never suffer from this dread disease, which at best means a weakening operation, with long weeks wasted in bed, and the doctor's and surgeon's bills to pay as souvenirs. Keep your appendix in health by the proper use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, whenever you have laid yourself out to danger by overeating, and upon the least sign of stomach or intestinal trouble, or otherwise, at any time, this dangerous disease may lay you low. The curative influence of this great medicine is quickly shown in the gentle, soothing effect it has on all the inflamed conditions of any part of the digestive tract. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets tone all these parts up to a proper condition of perfect health, and regulate their functions into a proper working state. They also make away with all the causes of irritation, inflammation or indigestion, by helping to dissolve, digest and assimilate, or put to proper use, all the food which is lying around in odd corners of your digestive apparatus, fermenting, rotting and curdling, like so much garbage in a dirty sink. In these natural and perfectly simple ways, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets restore all sufferers from any form of dyspeptic trouble, to health. They are safe and reliable. They never fail to relieve and cure, quickly and permanently. Use them, and you need never worry about your appendix verminiformis."

GORDON SPEAKS TO HIS TROOPS

Colonel of First Regiment Outlines His Idea of Duty.

Says if Soldiers Don't Want to Use Weapons, They Should Resign, and He Will Resign if They Disapprove of His Views.

Savannah, Ga., October 25.—(Special).—Colonel G. A. Gordon, commanding the First regiment of infantry, tonight addressed the Savannah companies of the command, who were massed to hear him. He spoke of the duty of soldiers when called out to quell mobs or riots, and what he said was cheered by the men.

Colonel Gordon's talk was anent the occurrence at Statesboro, when a large detachment from his regiment failed to prevent the mob from securing and lynching the negro prisoners, Cato and Reed.

He said that he wanted it understood hereafter that when the soldiers were called out it would be with the understanding that, if necessary, bayonets would be used and orders to fire upon a mob would be given. This was the duty of soldiers, he said, and they should expect it when the necessity should arise.

The colonel said that he would expect every man to respond to this duty. If any one of them felt that he should not fire upon a mob, or charge with the bayonets when ordered, he should apply for his discharge and he, the colonel, would approve the application.

If any man of family thought that he could not remain in the regiment with this understanding, he, too, might make his application for discharge, and the colonel would see that it was sent to the adjutant general with favorable indorsement. These, Colonel Gordon said, were his views, and if the regiment was not in sympathy with him and did not endorse them, all that was necessary was for it to so notify him and his resignation was ready. As long, however, as he was at the head of the command he purposed doing all in his power to see that troops, if called out, should do their duty, and that there should be no recurrence of such an affair as that at Statesboro.

Colonel Gordon was abroad at the time of the Statesboro affair. He formerly commanded the company that Captain Hitch commanded, the Oglethorpe Light Infantry.

One of the morning trains from Florida went on this morning and was closely guarded by Deputy United States Marshal McClellan and Deputy Cason. As they were being carried to the court house to testify before the grand jury, the officers were met with jeers from a crowd of Altman's friends. It is the opinion of some of the officers here tonight that Judge Parker will request that military be sent to Folkston tomorrow, should they be any indication of trouble.

Three deputies will accompany the Altman and Harvey to Folkston tomorrow.

FACES CHARGE OF ARSON.

Herrington Jailed at Seale for Burning Prison.

Columbus, Ga., October 25.—(Special).—With the serious charge of arson hanging over him, and under a $200 bond, which he failed to give, Jesse Herrington, a young white man of Phenix City, Ala., has been committed to the Russell county jail, at Seale, Ala.

Herrington was arrested by the Girard, Ala., officers for disorderly conduct on the streets. About 2:30 o'clock a Sunday morning parties who reside near the Girard jail, were awakened by the screams of a prisoner calling for help.

They hastened to the jail, and found the building enveloped in smoke. The fire was put out before very much damage was done. The bedding was burned and the walls and door facing was damaged. It seems that after setting fire to the cell, the prisoner became alarmed, as the flames were getting beyond his control. He was trying to burn a hole through the door, so as to escape.

ARMIES TOUCH IN MANCHURIA

Artillery Duels and Skirmishes Continuous.

In Many Places Along the Front Trenches of Russians and Japanese Are Not Fifty Yards Apart, But No General Fight Occurs.

Both Russian and Japanese armies now confront each other in entrenched positions, only a few hundred yards apart. The dispatches say that at some points not more than 50 yards separate them.

General fighting, however, has not yet been resumed, and dispatches from the front fail to explain the delay of the expected engagement. Artillery firing is kept up and skirmishes are continuous. Marshal Oyama reports that his losses in the battle of Shangkai were 15,679.

WECHIL CHILEAN NAVY REPORTED SAILED TO RUSSIA

St. Petersburg, October 25.—3:25 p. m.—A story is current here that Russia has purchased the Chilean navy, which will join the Russian second Pacific squadron at the Azores Islands. According to the report an infraction of Chilean neutrality will be avoided by transferring the ships to Turkey, for which the port will receive $2,000,000 from Russia. While the story receives some credence, it is denied in responsible quarters.

JAP OFFICERS TOOK LIVES WHEN BUILDING BURNED

Chefoo, October 25.—6:30 p. m.—A junk which arrived here today from Antung, on the Yalu river, reports that eight Japanese buildings containing rations, clothing and ammunition, secured at the battle of Yalu, were burned recently, the fire lasting two days. Incendiarism is suspected. Two Japanese officers, who were responsible for the care of the buildings, committed suicide.

Divorce Evil GREAT MENACE

Savannah, Ga., October 25.—(Special).—Horace G. Stone, attorney for former Captain Oberlin M. Carter, returned tonight from Brunswick, where he inspected the work done for the government upon harbor and jetties under Captain Carter's supervision. His idea is to familiarize himself with the character of the work done under Captain Carter in order that he may plead as to its efficiency.

Tomorrow, it is thought, Mr. Stone will get his witnesses before a United States commissioner to secure their depositions for submission to Judge Kohlsaat at Chicago in his effort to clear Carter of the charge of conspiracy, and thus establish his client's right to the $500,000 that is now held under a trust.

The evidence of both Greene and Gaynor, exiled in Quebec, which has been given in The Constitution, as upholding the innocence of Carter and showing that he never received a cent of funds misdirected, is relied upon by Mr. Stone as about the strongest proof he can submit of the innocence of his client.

HOOSIER STATE TO VOTE RIGHT

Bryan Says Indiana Situation Is Bright for Democrats.

New York, October 25.—A statement from William J. Bryan of his impressions during his speaking tour in Indiana, as expressed in a letter received here, was issued at democratic national headquarters.

Mr. Bryan's second tour of Indiana closes tonight, when, according to his own estimate, he will have addressed 700,000 people, or an average of 60,000 or 70,000 people a day. He has made seventy-five speeches. He says he is pleased at the reception given him everywhere in the state. In the statement as given out by the committee, Mr. Bryan is quoted as saying:

"So far as I can judge from the size of the crowds and the interest manifested in the expression of the people, the democrats of Indiana are ready for election day. There will be no considerable defection among the silver democrats of the state. If I can judge from what I have seen in the sections I visited, I take it for granted that every good democrat who has not gone over to the republican party permanently will support the ticket. I leave Indiana with hope and confidence of democratic victory."

Silver Men Are Loyal.

Kendallville, Ind., October 25.—Mr. Bryan in his speech here today, said: "For the benefit of our silver democrats let me refer to a Bible incident. I quote scripture because I have never found any other book that contains as much truth as the Bible. I recall the plan adopted by Solomon to ascertain the real mother of the two women who claimed a child. The wise man proposed that the child be divided, giving a half to each woman. The woman it was said was the real mother of the child to the division, but the woman whose child it was said:

"No, let the other have it, but let the child live." Eight years ago there was a contest in our party and some who claimed to have democratic principles better than mine were willing to have the party divided and a renegade president elected. Now it is our time to be tested. I hope I speak for all who voted for me when I say that we would rather surrender the organization for this campaign than permit the enemy to win a victory through our division. We are not willing that the party should die. It has rendered too great a service in the past; it is too necessary at present and its future contains too much of love for the human race. It must not die."

HEART FAILURE KILLS VAN COTT

New York, Postmaster Dies After One Day's Illness.

New York, October 25.—Cornelius Van Cott, postmaster of New York city, died suddenly this afternoon of heart failure, following a sharp attack of acute nervous indigestion.

He was taken ill yesterday afternoon at his office in the federal building, and his condition was such that the attending physician deemed his removal inadvisable at that time. Today Mr. Van Cott appeared much better and was taken to his home in West Eighty-sixth street. Shortly after the patient had a sinking spell and died at 3:25 o'clock.

Mr. Van Cott had been a vigorous man, but of late he had been subjected to an unusual amount of trouble, and this is believed to have undermined his health. He assisted in the establishment of a commercial agency and signed notes to a large amount. The concern failed, and Mr. Van Cott was called upon to pay over $23,000, which took practically the savings of a lifetime. About this time an investigation of the New York postoffice was undertaken by the Washington officials, but the integrity of the postmaster was not impugned. Notwithstanding the favorable outcome he worried much over the affair.

The recent arrest of his son, Richard Van Cott, charged with colonizing, was a severe blow to the postmaster, who expressed his firm belief in his son's innocence. These troubles, coupled with advancing age—he was in his sixty-seventh year—played an important part in bringing on the fatal illness.

He had long been prominent in New York politics.

Marion Moss, Covington, Ga.

Covington, Ga., October 25.—(Special).—Marion Moss, one of the oldest and best known citizens of Newton county, died early this morning. Mr. Moss was 80 years of age. Although above the age limit for military service, he volunteered his services as a private soldier to the Confederate army at the breaking out of hostilities and served until the close of the war.

CANNOT UNITE CHURCHES NOW

Associate Reformed Synod in Session in Missouri.

Vote of Union With Other Branch of Presbyterian Church is Close
But it is Not Thought That Definite Action Will Be Taken.

Elsherry, Oct. 25.—(Special).—The Associate Reformed Synod of the South was opened with a sermon by Rev. J. P. Erwin, of Tennessee. There is a large attendance of delegates from all parts of the synod, even the far-away Mexican presbytery being represented.

There are several questions of great importance to come up for action by the synod. One of the most important of the questions is the question of union with the United Presbyterian Church of North America. The sentiment favoring union has grown much during the last ten years, but is not yet strong enough to effect union. The reason is the disturbing element and is the real reason why union is not effected.

The vote on the union is close, there being now 93 votes recorded against union and 99 in favor, and the Mexican presbytery has not yet recorded its vote. Even should the vote of the presbytery change the complexion of the vote, it is doubtful whether the union would be effected at this meeting. There is no disposition among the advocates of union to press the matter.

HARRELL GONE FROM CORDELE

Whereabouts of Powell's Slayer Not Known at Present.

Cordele, Ga., October 25.—(Special).—The whereabouts of George W. Harrell, who last night shot and instantly killed J. L. Powell, a deputy game warden and justice of the peace of the eleventh district of Dooley county, is at this time unknown.

It was thought that Harrell had gone to Abbeville to surrender himself, but a telegram late this afternoon states that he has not.

Powell lived near Liston, 3 or 4 miles west of Seville. He leaves a wife and three children. His remains will be interred at the Johnson family burial ground at Wilford tomorrow morning.

Mr. Harrell is about forty years of age, and has a wife and several children, one of whom is grown. He is recognized as a cool, conservative man.

Carrollton, Ga., October 25.—(Special).—Monday afternoon Alderman Dr. H. B. Robinson, of Rome street, was on fire. Hard work was put forth to save the building, but water was so scarce little could be done. The building burned down. It was one of the landmarks of the city. There was small insurance, and the completion of Carrollton's water works voted for this year.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES MARK DEDICATION OF MASONIC HOME

Masonic Home for the Indigent Men, Women and Orphans of the Order, which was Dedicated at Macon Yesterday.

Constitution Bureau, 467 Second Street, Macon, Ga., October 25.—(Special).—In the presence of nearly a thousand Georgia Masons the Masonic home for the indigent men, women and orphans of the Masonic order was dedicated this afternoon with impressive ceremonies.

The exercises began at 3 o'clock, and occupied the larger portion of the afternoon. At a cost of about $30,000 the Masonic home was erected by the Georgia Masons 24 miles from the heart of Macon, in what is known as North Macon. The plans for the building were prepared by an Atlanta architect, and the building, as it now stands, represents good architectural work. Twenty-one rooms of the home have been furnished by individual and public donations.

The dedication exercises this afternoon began with prayer and music. Then Grand Master Max Meyerhardt, of Rome, made the opening address, stating the purpose of the home and its benevolent character. He could hardly have chosen words more suitable to the occasion, and he held the closest attention of his hearers. Following his address came others interspersed by music. Among the other prominent Masons who spoke were Deputy Grand Master Thomas H. Jeffries, of Atlanta; Past Grand Master W. A. Davis, of Macon; Senior Grand Warden Henry Burke, of LaGrange; Junior Grand Warden George M. Napier, of Macon; and Past Grand Master James W. Taylor, of Luthersville.

Long Felt Need.

As there are now more than 25,000 Masons in this state the grand lodge of Masons has long felt the need of such a home as the one dedicated this afternoon for those old Masons who have reached the age limit, as well as the widows and orphans of the deceased members of the order. The corner stone was laid about one year ago, and since then every effort has been made to complete the home in time for the annual session of the grand lodge of Masons, which began here today.

The following are the trustees of the home: Max Meyerhardt, of Rome; Thomas H. Jeffries, of Atlanta; Henry Burke, of LaGrange; George M. Napier, of Macon. From the state at large: S. E. Berry, of Dalton; Julius L. Mack, of Macon; W. A. Davis, of Macon; James W. Taylor, of Luthersville; J. M. Heard, of Elberton; E. T. Davis, of Flowery Branch; J. T. Neal, of Thomaston; J. Clayton Clements, of Towns; Y. A. Wright, of Jackson; William Swergert, of Augusta, and J. C. Greenfield, of Atlanta.

Now that the University of Georgia management has cancelled the game which was to be played in Savannah during the regular football season with the eleven representing the Savannah Athletic Club, Manager McIntyre, of the Savannah club, is negotiating with the Athens management for a game to be played after Thanksgiving day, when the regular season is over.

The chances are that the game will fall through on account of the fact that the faculty of the university allows but a certain number of games each year, closing the season when this number has been completed.

In Savannah, however, there is a feeling that if Georgia had won the game played last year in Savannah there would have been a greater willingness to play on their part this season.

Their safety razor, which is the largest sale of any in the world.

The first game to be played by Savannah this season will come shortly with the Florida state team. This game is expected to be a good one.

The purchase of an athletic park for both the baseball team of the city and the Savannah Athletic Club is being seriously considered by President Boyer, of the Savannah Baseball Club, and the athletic club.

The Georgia management is in receipt of a request to allow a game of football to be played on Thanksgiving day between the eleven from Dahlonega and the Stone Mountain High school, in Athens on Herty field. No action has as yet been taken in the matter.

Tech is still hard at work getting in shape for the game with Auburn Saturday, which is expected to be one of the closest and most difficult to win of the season.

The House, are coming back into shape and are expected to be able to go in Saturday.

T. E. Ralt, the manager of the Tech baseball team, is preparing to commence a baseball campaign for games during the summer and spring with the colleges of the south. Coach Holsman expects to have a great baseball team here next spring, if he decides to stay in Atlanta, and the Tech students are determined to keep him here.

January 3 the Cornell Glee Club is expected to arrive in Savannah and give a performance there. The Savannah management is doing its best to persuade the management of the glee club to ring in as many football players into the glee club as possible and to play the Savannah club a game while in the south. It is stated that Captain Lynch will be a member of the club.

The Yale basketball team management is losing no time in getting a schedule ready for their coming season, when they come south for a series of games. They have written to the Nashville Athletic Club for a game and arrangements will be made. The matter of a game is still under advisement in Emory. It is probable that the Atlanta clubs will soon hear from the management of this basketball team.

Hope To Be Successful.

Macon, Ga., October 25.—(Special).—Extensive preparations have been made for the annual hop to be given at the Voluntary armory next Friday by the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks of America. garded Great Success.

Constitution Bureau, 467 Second Street, Macon, Ga., October 25.—(Special).—When the governor, accompanied by his staff in uniform, together with the congressmen and senators of Georgia, reached Macon at noon today the streets in front of the union depot were packed with thousands of people to catch a glimpse of the distinguished visitors. Carriages were waiting, and with a large escort, the visitors were carried to the fair grounds as the guests of the Georgia State fair.

Headed by the Sixteenth Infantry band and Troop I, Seventh cavalry, the governor's party, including the reception committee, made its way to the Smith Art hall on the fair grounds. Here the governor and other distinguished members of the party shook hands with those in attendance, after which a big barbecue was served on the fair grounds. Though no addresses were made, a general good time was given the visitors and all those who attended.

As was the case yesterday, the fair grounds were crowded today with people going and coming, and not the least part of the present state fair seems to be a big drawing card, and the fact that some of the local horses are showing on the fair has been an additional factor in drawing the people together to listen for "they're off."

Any Rheumatic Sufferer may have a full dollar's worth of my remedy free

I searched the whole earth for a specific for Rheumatism—something that I or any physician could feel safe in prescribing—something that we could count on not only occasionally, but ALWAYS. For the ravages of Rheumatism are everywhere and genuine relief is rare.

After twenty years of search and experiment, I learned of the chemical I now employ. And I knew then that my search and my efforts were well rewarded. For this chemical gave me the remedy for Rheumatism which in the cure of Rheumatism is practically certain.

You pay nothing—you promise nothing
you risk nothing—you deposit nothing

Crystallized Poison!

You know that hard water leaves a deposit of lime in the bottom of the tea-kettle in which it boils and soft water does not. It is because soft water is filtered and contains no lime, while hard water is not filtered and is full of it.

You can imagine that if that deposit were to settle in the joint of your knee it would be extremely painful. And if the deposit grew you could finally no longer endure the torture of walking.

Yet that is the very way that Rheumatism begins and ends. Except that the deposit which forms is not lime, but crystallized poison.

For your blood is always full of poison—the poison you eat and drink and breathe into your system. It is the purpose of the blood to absorb and carry off this very poison. And the kidneys, which are the blood filters, are expected to cleanse the blood and to throw out the poison.

But when it can carry them no longer, it deposits them in a joint—on a bone—anywhere.

The twinge in your leg—the dull ache in your arm on a rainy day—these are the outward signs of the inward poison. And the sufferer who has allowed his symptoms to go on, without the aid of my remedy, is the evidence of what Rheumatism neglected, can do.

Rheumatism includes lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia, gout—for all these are the results of rheumatic poison in the blood. Plainly, the first thing to do is to remove the poison. But this is not enough. The blood must be kept clean and the kidneys must be able to eliminate the crystals which have already formed. This is done by my remedy. It is a cure—no permanent relief.

I don't mean that Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure can turn your joints into fresh again—that is impossible. But it will drive from the blood the poison that causes pain and swelling, and then that is the end of the pain and swelling, and the end of the suffering—the end of Rheumatism.

I am willing that you should prove my claim at all expenses. I will gladly give you a full dollar's worth of Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy to try. For I know that you and your neighbors and friends will, by your good wishes and your good words, more than repay my initial loss.

You pay nothing—you promise nothing
you risk nothing—you deposit nothing

Crystallized Poison!

You know that hard water leaves a deposit of lime in the bottom of the tea-kettle in which it boils and soft water does not. It is because soft water is filtered and contains no lime, while hard water is not filtered and is full of it.

You can imagine that if that deposit were to settle in the joint of your knee it would be extremely painful. And if the deposit grew you could finally no longer endure the torture of walking.

Yet that is the very way that Rheumatism begins and ends. Except that the deposit which forms is not lime, but crystallized poison.

For your blood is always full of poison—the poison you eat and drink and breathe into your system. It is the purpose of the blood to absorb and carry off this very poison. And the kidneys, which are the blood filters, are expected to cleanse the blood and to throw out the poison.

But when it can carry them no longer, it deposits them in a joint—on a bone—anywhere.

The twinge in your leg—the dull ache in your arm on a rainy day—these are the outward signs of the inward poison. And the sufferer who has allowed his symptoms to go on, without the aid of my remedy, is the evidence of what Rheumatism neglected, can do.

Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy

It is found that the negroes stop work, even at the most critical times, and that no arguments can induce them to resume it until they want to do so.

St. Louis, Mo., October 25.—(Special).—More Italian laborers are arriving at Wilmington, not because of the scarcity of negro labor, but because the latter does not meet the requirements, and for the distinct purpose of supplanting the negroes.

 Children's New Winter Dresses, $5 to $12.50
 Children's New Winter Coats, $5.00 to $20.00

Details are skipped---and for very good reasons. No one would care to read a catalogue of styles any more than they would care to read a catalogue of the contents of an art museum. General statements are strong enough. The large varieties just received have grandly enriched the stock that in mid-October was showing signs of exhaustion. No woman who intends to buy a garment can afford to pass the assortments now ready here. An effective and desirable air of clearly definable elegance and exclusiveness distinguishes the Suits and Wraps we've chosen for the women of Atlanta. The productions of the best American manufacturers are completely represented---manufacturers who adopt and modify the richest Paris, Vienna and London styles---besides originating models on their own account that compare favorably with the choicest that are imported. The prices are marvels of cheapness. New standards of value-giving are being daily established. If you find crowds when you come---please exercise a little patience. You'll be served as promptly as the best, biggest and brightest facilities make possible.

RAILWAY NOTES.

Railroad men state that the cotton crop this year is being moved with greater facility than ever before. They also state that there has been less congestion this year than ever before and explain this by saying that not only has the equipment been far better on most all of the southern roads, but the fact that the farmers and planters have had enough money to hold their cotton for better prices. In this way the movement has been much more gradual than in former years and easier to handle for the same reason. All of the railroad men seem sanguine of a big crop for Georgia as well as the entire cotton belt.

Fred Miller, the Illinois Central passenger representative in Atlanta, yesterday returned from Rome, where he started a car of pretty passengers on their way rejoicing. The passengers were a number of the prettiest girls in Georgia, who are attending Shorter college, and the entire party, chaperoned by several teachers, left for a visit to the St. Louis exposition.

The Annapolis accommodation, which has been leaving Atlanta daily except Sunday over the Southern at 6:15 p. m., now leaves at 5:15. This change went into effect Sunday.

While none of the railroad men cared to be interviewed, from a number of the highest officials it was learned that they are busy preparing for the big freight case which comes up Thursday. All of them say that the railroads will follow the "stand pat" policy and are preparing for a long fight and a hard one.

The railroads are beginning to feel the effects of the long drought in a way peculiar and exceptional to their entire history. Reports have come in from several places that freights were compelled to stop because of a lack of water. Many of the watering tanks are also reported as being unable to meet the demands of the thirsty engines and some of them have been put entirely out of commission by the long dry spell.

Work was begun yesterday in cleaning up the old ticket offices of the West Point on Pryor street preparatory to their removal to the Fourth national bank building. These offices, together with those of the Central of Georgia, will be moved to Whitehall street this present week, and be ready for the official transaction of business on November 1.

The fact that so many of the railroads are equipping their new coaches with steel underframes means much to the traveling passenger public. It is claimed that in lengthening the coaches for increased capacity the wooden frames have been weakened and as a result cars have been demolished in wrecks. The have proved their great superiority in case of accident time and again, and especially in the past two years.

It is also claimed that the railroads are moved by other than philanthropic reasons in that the wear on the wooden frames have proved most expensive during the past few years and the loss of equipment in cars has amounted to a tremendous sum. Of course the steel frames also last much longer and some of the large railroads are beginning to believe that the added expense in construction will be more than made up in the durability and safety of the new construction.

General Passenger Agent J. P. Billups, of the West Point Route, who has just returned from the annual meeting of the American Association of General Passenger and Ticket Agents, says that the meeting this year was a great success with the speech of S. H. Hardwick as one of the big features. The banquet this year was also a big winner and the menu most unique. This was in the shape of a long ticket couched in the technical phrasing of a regular railroad contract with a coupon for each course.

It is reported that the Southern railway leads the world in mileage operated under the block signal system, having 6,000 miles operated. The interstate commerce commission is now taking up the subject with the presidents of all the roads with a view to having every mile of railroad blocked as it is in England.

Sympathizing with the strikers of Katy proved expensive for a little town in the Indian Territory called Savannah. The population of 600 did not like the operators who came to take the place of the strikers and refused to give them board. The Katy company then tore down its station buildings and refused to do any more business there.

Traveling Passenger Agent R. O. Bean, of the Union Pacific, who has been ill for some time, is reported as being much better.

Engine No. 1, as pretty a little model of the old style locomotive as can be found on the tracks, belonging to the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis road, brought down a number of visitors to the tracks leading into the Union car shed from the Atlanta railroad world yesterday. The engine in these days of 6-foot drivers seems like little more than a toy, but new improvements have been added which make it a speedy little locomotive.

This was the first engine of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis and is looked upon as the mascot. It is very prettily painted in bright red and the cab is of natural wood, while the trimmings of brass are highly polished, and the arrival of No. 1 always gathers a big crowd. But there is more than one reason why the engine is popular, for it is now used by General Manager Thomas for pulling his special car and the pay train over the entire system. So it is that for this reason the little red engine always leaves a great deal of pleasure in its wake.

Everything is quiet along North Pryor street awaiting the hearing on the freight case which is billed for tomorrow before Judge Newman. In fact, the stillness yesterday was unusual and some there were who said that it was only the calm that precedes the storm.

Several of the Atlanta railroad men returned yesterday from a meeting of the Southeastern Passenger Association in New York. They reported that only routine business was transacted at the Gotham session.

ELIZABETH WALTON DEAD.

Daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Walton Passed Away Tuesday Morning.

Funeral services over the body of Elizabeth Walton, the 10-year-old daughter of Rev. and Mrs. R. A. Walton, were conducted at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Barclay & Brandon's chapel. At 5 o'clock the body was taken to Owensville, Ky., for interment.

The child died of peritonitis early Tuesday morning. She had been in this city but a short while before she was attacked with what seemed to be a slow fever. Then acute indigestion set in and then appendicitis. It was found that an operation was absolutely necessary and accordingly she was taken to the Elkin-Cooper sanitarium. Sunday the operation was performed. Peritonitis ensued and it was seen that at best the child could live only a few hours. All the skill of medical science was used to save the little girl, but to no avail. At the time of her death, she was surrounded by her parents and a host of sorrowful friends.

Dr. Walton, the father of the deceased, is one of the visiting evangelists now conducting the Gospel Union revival services. He has been in this kind of work for ten years and prior to this time was for five years the pastor of the Presbyterian church in Owensville, Ky. A host of friends here and elsewhere sympathize with him and his wife in their bereavement.

DULL DAY AT THE CAPITOL.

Governor and Many Officials Went to Macon for Georgia Day at the Fair.

It was a dull and newsless day at the state capitol yesterday. Governor Terrell and several of the officials spent the day in Macon in attendance on the state fair, and those who remained behind could stir up nothing of sufficient importance to interest the public.

Governor Terrell and his party of lieutenant colonels in dress uniform, headed by Colonel James W. English, Jr., chief of staff, left the city at 7:50 a. m., spent the day at the state fair and returned to the city last night after a very pleasant day. Among the capitol officials who went to Macon for the day were Commissioner of Agriculture O. B. Stevens, State Treasurer R. E. Park, General Clement A. Evans, of the prison commission; Captain C. T. Furlow, of the treasury department; Pension Commissioner J. W. Lindsey, Colonel A. J. Scott and Colonel W. G. Ohear, of the adjutant general's department.

GEO. C. SMITH, OF MACON, HAS HAD NOTABLE CAREER

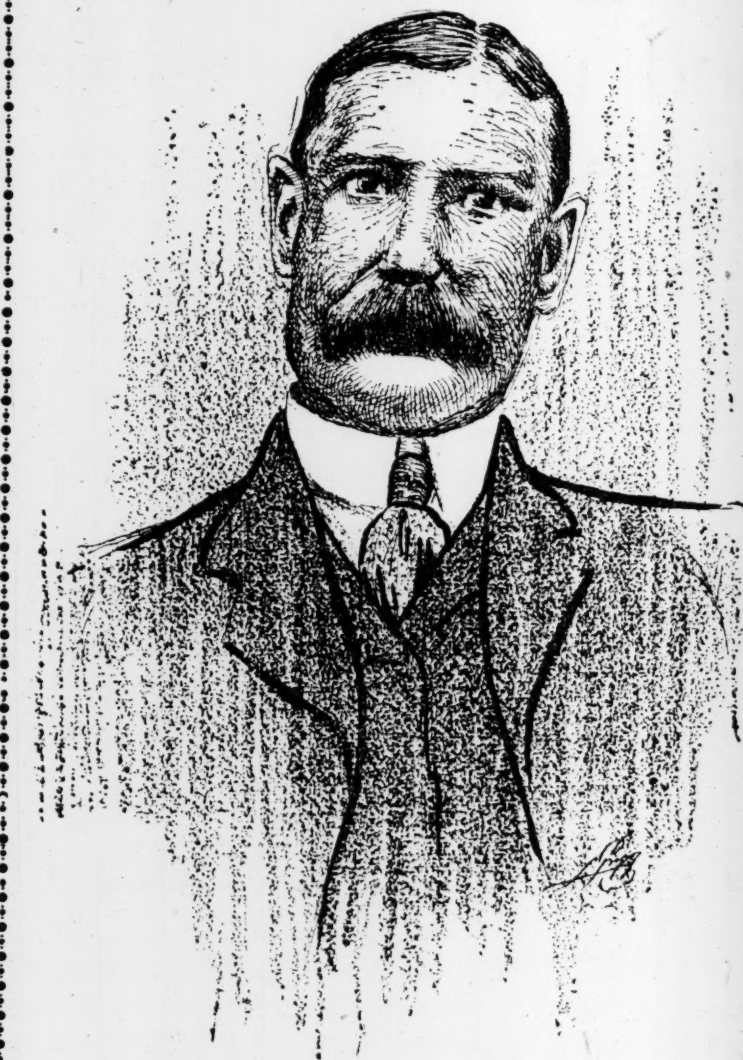

MACON, Ga., October 25.—(Special.)—The handsome new Presbyterian church at Milledgeville, Ga., would probably have never been built, certain it is, so attractive a temple of worship could not have been reared, but for the handsome gift of George C. Smith, of Macon. Mr. Smith was for four years mayor of Milledgeville. He has always taken an active interest in Sunday school work, and while a resident of that city was for 15 years superintendent of the Presbyterian Sunday school. He took quite an active interest in young people and especially in the young men and women students at the Georgia Military college and the Georgia Normal and Industrial Institute for girls. Being impressed with the necessity for the solid groundwork of Christian education in character building, he sought to contribute in as large a measure as he was capable, to the moral and religious instruction of the youth of the state.

Through for a year Mr. Smith has been a resident of Macon, he still has an interest in the city that was for so many years his home, and though the headquarters of his cotton exporting house is here, he has a branch office in that city. When the builders of the new Presbyterian church were encountering dry days in their zealous efforts to rear an ornate temple for divine worship, he came to the rescue very handsomely with a cash donation of $5,000 that insured the satisfactory completion of the handsome edifice. Though the thirteenth child and born on the thirteenth day of the month, Mr. Smith has not only been very lucky himself, but has brought luck to others. He has crossed the Atlantic twelve times in the interest of his business, and will make the thirteenth voyage next summer, so he declares.

PRICE OF YARNS ADVANCE

Two and One-Half to Three Per Cent. in Article.

Charlotte, N. C., October 25.—Representatives of the "hard" yarn manufacturers, who met in this city September 27 and formed an association, were in conference here today. It is claimed that as a result of the organization and the adherence to the scale of prices then adopted, prices have advanced 2 1/2 to 3 per cent. It is expected that at today's meeting the advisory committee will submit a report which will determine future cotton action.

THE PASSING THROU.

"Rain is needed on every inch of the ground between Atlanta and Chattanooga," remarked one of the conductors on that line at the Kimball yesterday afternoon. "I have been running on that line for 20 years, and like the man I saw in The Constitution this morning, I tell you I have never seen the want of water felt so severely. Not only are the springs and the streams drying up, but the farmers along about Dalton and Cartersville are driving their cattle two and three miles for water. Wherever there is a stream affording water there the farmers leave their cattle, even carrying to them feed necessary to sustain them." "And just the same conditions exist in my section," put in a man from near Madison. "All the way down the Georgia road the drought is felt, has been felt for weeks gone by. Water and not food is what the cattle owners are asking for. I happen to know that near Union Point water is being hauled in barrels for 15 miles. The streams are all dry, the wells are at low tide, while springs that have never known to fail are so low that a dipper is used to bring up the small quantity of the spring's flow can afford. Rain is needed, and it is rain for which the people are praying."

For Children, Too.

Mr. Wiley Hunt, Ennis, Texas, writes: We gave Drake's Palmetto Wine to two children who were afflicted with bed wetting. Two bottles of Drake's Palmetto Wine cured both. It is now a month since they took the last of the wine and no return of their trouble. I told a neighbor who had a child troubled same way what the wine did for our children. They got a bottle of Drake's Palmetto Wine and in one week their child had no more trouble with bed wetting. The Drake Formula Company, Drake Building, Chicago, Ill., will send a trial bottle of Drake's Palmetto Wine free and prepaid to any reader of this paper who wishes to test Drake's Palmetto Wine without expense. A trial bottle often cures. One dose a day will cure any bed or nocturnal trouble to stay cured. For Sale by Jacobs' Pharmacy, Atlanta.

as well as this one. Since the day of the opening the grounds have been constantly crowded. The attendance has been larger than any show of the kind has shown daily. No one comes away disappointed, or in any way displeased, and for that reason I say I am inclined to think it is the biggest, best and greatest show this country has ever presented."

"It is now nearly eight years," said T. C. McLaughlin, a DeKalb county boy, "since I have tramped the soil of my native state. Just before the war with Spain began I enlisted in the army and went to Cuba. I was then with the Ninth infantry. After that little scrap I was transferred to the Sixteenth and when that regiment went to the Philippines I was one of the number. And there I have been since until a few weeks ago, when we came home. Now I did not like it out there, and I don't think many of the boys who went over were pleased, notwithstanding the many pleasant stories we read now and then. Those islands will do for some people, but they are not calculated to please every one who visits them. Of course, there are many attractive features out there, but within a short time that wears off and then comes the horrible homesickness. Imagine yourself 10,000 miles and more away from home and then maybe you can form some idea of what the soldiers from the states suffered while among those negroes. Why, I have seen members of my regiment cry like children because they were homesick, and I have seen some of those men go rank insane because of that feeling. I know the government paid millions for the islands in making peace, but I tell you now that it has cost American mothers millions of heart throbs for the boys who have been sent over there to look after a peaceful lot of people that treaty required. It's all a sham. Then negroes will never be satisfied under American rule any more than they were under Spanish rule. They have an idea they want independence and nothing short of that is going to satisfy them. But they are not more able to manage a government than are people who know nothing of a government. Just as soon as my term of enlistment expires I shall drop my uniform and just now I can think of no conditions which will induce me to enlist again."

Hon. Charles A. Nixley, of Wadesboro, N. C., a member of the North Carolina legislature, is among the guests at the Kimball.

G. D. Brewer, one of the leading citizens of Wythe county, Virginia, is at the Kimball.

EMIGRATION AGENT IMPALED.

Brooks Sought to Transport Laborers From State.

Carrollton, Ga., October 25.—(Special.)—Henry Brooks, a negro subagent for emigration agents, was arrested here last night charged with interfering with farm labor in this section. It is said that he was working in concert with a white man who represented coal miners in the Birmingham district, and that this white agent was to meet Brooks at Bremen, 12 miles north of here, this morning and furnish transportation to Birmingham, where much higher wages were to be paid to them. It is expected that the prosecution will be pushed to the finish, as the effort would greatly disturb the harvesting of the cotton crop just now in these parts.

Thirty Hurt in Smash. Seattle, Wash., October 25.—Over 30 persons were injured, three of them probably fatally, in two head-on collisions that occurred today in a fog on Benton and the University electric line.

SHORT ITEMS OF LOCAL INTEREST

WORD HAS BEEN RECEIVED IN this city of the death of M. M. Brown in Philadelphia. Mr. Brown was 32 years of age. He had been in this city for the last twenty years. At the time of his death he was president of the Atlanta Metal and Bottle Company. For several months he had suffered with some disease, the nature of which could not be determined. He decided about a week ago to consult a specialist in Philadelphia. After arriving there his condition became suddenly worse and he died Sunday night. His body is expected to reach Atlanta this afternoon at 4:50 o'clock. The deceased is survived by a wife and daughter, two brothers and a sister. The home of the family is at 68 East Georgia avenue. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

DAN MCGILL, OF THE FIRM OF Mayson, Hill & McGill, is quite ill at his home in Decatur. Mr. McGill was taken sick on Thursday last and while little attention was given his illness up to two or three days ago, it now develops that he is seriously sick. He is being given every attention possible by the members of the family, the physicians and nurses. Though somewhat unwell, the friends of Mr. McGill are decidedly hopeful of an early and rapid recovery.

THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL OF the Georgia Banking Association convened in Atlanta at the Kimball yesterday. Mr. Miller S. Bell, of Savannah, president of the Georgia Bankers' Association, was in attendance. The chairman of the executive council, Mr. John R. Reynolds, of Rome, presided, while the attendance was up to its full membership. The Atlanta members of the association are Mr. T. C. Erwin, executive counsel of the Third national bank, and Mr. Manley, cashier of the Farmers and Traders' bank. The session was devoted to the discussion of some legislation the bankers of the state are anxious to secure.

THE CASES AGAINST THE ALLEGED counterfeiters are scheduled for trial before Judge Newman, of the United States court, this morning. But so far it is not known which of the alleged counterfeiters will be arraigned first. The prosecution is ready to go ahead with either one of the cases, but so far the attorneys for the defendants have not openly declared whether or not they will ask for a continuance or demand a trial this morning. The indications are that the court room will be crowded during the trials.

AT THE HOME OF MR. AND MRS. James Rodgers, in Kingston, this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock their daughter, Miss Ruth Rodgers, will be married to Dr. Edward McBryde, of that city. The marriage will be a quiet one, the close friends and relatives of the family only having been invited. The bride-to-be is one of the most charming, cultured and interesting young women of that section of the state as well as one of the most beautiful and accomplished. Dr. McBryde is counted among the energetic, successful and already men of north Georgia and is destined to become one of the leading and progressive citizens of that section. Quite a number of Atlantians, all close friends to the family, will go up this morning to attend the marriage.

THE FIRST UNIVERSALIST church will hold a rummage sale at the corner of Houston and Piedmont avenue from Thursday until Saturday of this week. The sale is for the benefit of the church.

THE BOTTLING WORK OF HAGAN & Dodd, at 214 Auburn avenue, were broken into last night about 11 o'clock by burglars. The police department was notified that the place had been burglarized, and searched the following morning. They were not able to say whether anything had been secured or not. The intruders secured entrance through prying open a window.

On to the coast.

Wanted, in Manchuria, a decisive battle.

The Baltic fleet simply exemplified the rattled condition of Russia.

The federal court seems to be radically enlarging its jurisdiction in the south.

England has other thoughts now than mediating between Russia and Japan.

Just two weeks until Judge Parker is elected president of the United States.

Russia seems to be doing her best to give John Bull provocation to boot in.

The political campaign does not seem to be diverting interest from the gridiron.

No democrat is complaining of Judge Parker's tactfulness now, or what he so well says.

Beware of overconfidence in Indiana's vote. The state is notorious for its production of fiction.

Perhaps Judge Parker has a mischievous purpose to nag Teddy into breaking his onerous silence.

Atlanta can build her own railroad to the gulf or to a gulf connection as a last resort for freight rate justice.

There are 14,000,000 voters in the United States, a large majority of those having white skins being democrats.

Ex-President Cleveland is as virile as ever in phrase-making. That latest effort, "The Limbo of Negation," is good.

A New York lady fainted the other day when a southern gentleman offered her his seat in a New York street car.

It is reported that Ambassador Choate will resign March 4 next. Well, they all would as well have their resignations ready.

Any little fishing smacks venturing too far from shore are warned not to fight the Baltic fleet. They might accidentally get shot.

Fashion dictates the flat style of purse this fall. It's symbolic of the cost of living under a government of, for and by the trusts.

The peace congress may not have observed that war is not reducing our surplus population at anything like the rate the grim work is being done by railroad accidents.

Atlanta's palatial new depot is almost ready for the interior finishing, and the framework of the huge car shed is in place. Great changes are being made in that part of the city.

It would not seem that the Japanese have much to fear from the Baltic fleet. Its action in the North Sea shows it to be extremely raw and subject to panic, to say the least.

Deacon Rockefeller has assured us that he is in favor of four years more of Roosevelt. Tom Lawson says Standard Oil has millions to spend for Parker in the last days of the campaign. On its face Tom's statement is "frenzied."

Judge Parker does not talk like a man whose campaign is financially beholden to the trusts. If Candidate Roosevelt has any disclaimer to enter now is the time. The people are convinced that he is making the trusts for his own political aggrandizement.

This is said to be an "ideal chestnut season," the crop never having been heavier or ripened earlier. Doubtless explainable by the order of wellbunders at large on the stump who resort to Chauncey Depew's forensic methods, and to the burr-opening atmosphere superinduced by the interstate peregrinations of that cool number, Fairbanks.

The convention of the United Textile Workers, in session at Lowell, Mass., adopted a resolution declaring that Governor Bates, who is running for reelection, "reflected the confidence of all friends of humanity" by his veto of the "overtime bill," and calling upon the workmen of Massachusetts to use every effort to prevent the governor's reelection. The great Fall River strike and other labor troubles, in conjunction with the hostile attitude of organized labor toward Governor Bates, will give Douglas, the democratic gubernatorial nominee, a fine fighting chance. He is in strong favor with labor.

An Example Worth Following!

In the consideration of the possibility of Atlanta securing permanent relief from unjust freight rate discrimination by taking the practical step of capitalizing her losses and thus giving life to an independent line of railway to a gulf port, it is worth while taking a look at what the state of New York has recently done.

We have seen the excellent results that came to Birmingham from the construction of the Kansas City, Memphis and Birmingham railway, and also how the business men of Cincinnati secured to themselves the valuable southern territory, from which they had been cut off, by building their own line to Chattanooga. In both of these instances the benefits to the cities in question have been immeasurable.

The same general end, that is the presence of real competition against railway monopoly, the people of New York have determined to secure for themselves by the construction of a great barge canal giving a complete waterway for freight barges of one thousand tons from Buffalo to New York city.

For the purpose of constructing this barge canal whose sole purpose is to take from the great railroad systems the power to fix rates on coal and grain and other commodities, the state of New York, by the enormous majority of 245,000, voted to bond itself for the enormous sum of $101,000,000, that being the engineer's estimate of cost.

This effort to insure permanent protection against exorbitant freight rates and freight rate discriminations was fought bitterly by the great railroad systems, but the people were so thoroughly alive to their own interests that the project was endorsed by the majority stated above.

With regard to the details of this great project it is stated that: The new canal will chiefly affect the coal trade of northwest and the grain trade. It is estimated that 1,000-ton barges can carry freight at a profit at a rate fifty-two one-hundredths of a mill per ton per mile, or 26 and one-tenth cents per ton from Buffalo to New York, while the railroads cannot compete against, and which will also abolish differentials against New York city of from 20 cents to $1 per ton in favor of some other ports.

In order to do away with discriminations threatening to sap the lifeblood from New York city, the people of that city, with the assistance of the people of the rest of the state, voted to bond the state for the enormous sum of one hundred and one millions of dollars, knowing full well that such a sum was as nothing compared with what the railroads would wring from them if there were no such competition; and knowing also that in their rapacious desire to pay interest on their watered stocks, the present day management of railroads does not hesitate to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs even when it is as big a goose, laying as great eggs as New York city.

There is no possibility of securing such a waterway for Atlanta and Georgia, of course, but a simple way to attain the desired end of competition is opened up to the business men of this city. The same spirit that has provided means to bring that barge canal, and that brought into life the Cincinnati Southern and the Memphis and Birmingham lines, can with comparative ease pass through an independent line to the gulf that would give Atlanta protection forever.

It is not necessary to again go over the grounds of possibility in this direction. Nothing can, however, be plainer than that as an incident to their present fight, the business men of Atlanta should set on foot a supplementary movement to bring here some one of the lines leading direct from the coast.

What Cincinnati did to save herself, Atlanta can surely do. The problem, even in proportion to business and capital, is not nearly so vast a one as was that the business of Cincinnati had to solve. Railroad construction is a much simpler matter now than it was then; the territory is not only easier to pierce, but it is far richer and would immediately respond liberally to the magic presence of a railroad system by giving a good local as well as a through business.

Any one of the proposed lines from the gulf would like to come on to Atlanta. Some one of them could be secured by very little outlay. And, as we have pointed out, such outlay could be made conditional upon a freight rate maximum that would forever protect Atlanta against unjust discrimination and against monopoly.

The Savannah Fall Carnival. Beginning on the 31st of this month and including November 5, Savannah is to have a fall festival, held under the auspices of the Savannah Carnival Association.

It is hardly necessary to say that whatever Savannah undertakes will be carried through to splendid success. No city has more clearly demonstrated her right to fame for the hospitality dispensed within her gates, and the preparations for this particular event have been made upon a scale that promises much entertainment. Among other attractions there will be the famous Seventh United States cavalry, whose troopers are always a feature of any entertainment in which they take part. And there will, we understand, be many other features of great interest.

The railroads have given very low rates for carnival week and it will certainly be worth the while of all Georgians who can do so to take in Savannah's fall festival.

The Care of Convicts.

In a communication to The Constitution, Hon. Frank Johnston, ex-attorney general of Mississippi, discusses in an interesting way the problem of the best method of handling convicts in the southern states. He gives a review of the experience of Mississippi and reaches the conclusion that the system of leasing convicts is entirely wrong.

In Mississippi the state convicts are worked exclusively upon farms owned by the state. This plan was adopted after the old lease system was done away with. Under the old system there were many abuses, the greatest of these being that the convicts passed, when leased, out of the hands and control of the state. Mr. Johnston thinks the system adopted by his state should be followed by Georgia.

In his treatment of the subject he makes the mistake of failing to differentiate between the leasing system that obtains in Georgia and that which was in existence here, as it was in Mississippi, up to ten or fifteen years ago. Under the Georgia system there is none of the leasing which is "nothing less than a form of human slavery," for all the abuses which made it that have been done away with. In this state it is the labor of the convicts, not the convicts themselves, that is leased. From the moment a convict is turned over to the state authorities until the expiration of his sentence, the state, and the state only, has control and supervision of him. The prison guards, the prison physicians, the prison officials are all officials of the state; the housing is superintended by the state, the regulations prescribing food and clothes and work hours are made by the state, and the physical welfare of the convict is as carefully attended to as if he were confined within prison walls.

The only difference between the Georgia system and that prevailing in some northern states where prison reform has long shaped the treatment of convicts is that the Georgia prisoner is, in most cases, worked out of doors, while the northern prisoner is kept closely confined within stone or brick walls. And so far as the welfare of the man himself in concerned, it is unquestionably better for him to be worked out of doors than to be confined in the great penitentiary at Columbus, Ohio, which is regarded a model. The percentage of deaths is, we believe, smaller here in Georgia. In deed, there can be no question that for the negroes, who form such a large proportion of the convicts of the southern states, the out-of-door work is infinitely better.

Mississippi has recognized this by putting her convicts upon state farms. Georgia does the same thing with women convicts, with the more youthful and with the old men. They are sent to the farm near Milledgeville, where, it may be said in passing, the results obtained are perhaps as good as those obtained upon the Mississippi farms.

No convict system can be perfect. Certainly none could be devised that would not be open to abuses. But here in Georgia we believe we have reduced the possibility of abuse to the minimum. As the system has been developed under the direction of an intelligent, thoughtful, humane prison commission, it comes as near being the right thing as any well could be. The leasing of convict labor in Georgia is as carefully guarded as it is in any of the big northern prisons where the work is done inside the prison walls. As we have said, the state never for a minute loses supervision, control, possession of the bodies of the convicts.

There may come a time when this leasing of convict labor may be done away with, but there is now no reason why there should be any such change in the interest of humanity. We feel confident that Georgia's convicts are treated as well in every respect as those of Mississippi, or, for that matter, as those of any other state; as well fed, as well clothed, as well housed, as well cared for. They are undoubtedly made to work, and work hard; but they work no harder than do the convicts in Mississippi, nor than thousands and tens of thousands of free and good Georgians have to work every day of their blessed lives.

Privately. President Theodore Roosevelt, while president of the United States, wrote to Dr. Shaw, editor of The Review of Reviews:

I freely say to you that I should be delighted if Panama were an independent state, or if it made itself so at this moment; but for me to say so publicly would amount to an instigation of a revolt, and therefore I cannot say it.

Exactly so. But having said it to Dr. Shaw, is there any assurance that he did not say it to the precious Bunau-Varilla, or to that advance agent of the incubating republic, Mr. Duque, who says the presidency was offered to him?

When the president first gave that letter out for publication it was with the stipulation that the portion quoted above should not be used.

Why? Was it not because by that time he had begun to realize the impropriety of one holding his office to be sending forth "private" views which "would amount to an instigation of a revolt?"

Mr. Roosevelt's "private" views—which, in accordance with the manner of man he is have a little way of becoming publicly expressed—have got him in trouble more than once.

He does not think. Those of his admirers who picture him a creature of impulse do not overstate or understate the reality. But one who holds the great office of president of the United States should think occasionally. An executive officer who is not swayed by judgment is a very dangerous thing to have about any great establishment. For one thing, he should think, and think often, that it is a pretty difficult thing for anybody talking with him or corresponding with him to separate the Theodore Roosevelt, "private citizen," and the Theodore Roosevelt, "president." In fact, it is impossible to dissociate these, one from the other, for the moment Theodore Roosevelt became president he ceased to be a private citizen.

And he should see that it was eminently improper for him to hold private views, especially when they looked to the dismemberment of an independent republic which was traditionally the friend of the United States of America. And vastly more improper to have expressed such views as Dr. Shaw or Bunau-Varilla or anybody else.

Mr. Roosevelt must have understood how bad that letter would look when he ordered the suppression of the only vital part of it. He had, apparently, come to his senses by that time, officially if not "privately." He realized there were things in that letter that would make him appear wise and just to Colombia, and he gave those things out for publication; but he also realized that the disclosure of the fact that he was at that same time sending about "private" views designed to instigate a revolt in a sister republic would look mighty bad.

It wasn't quite honest to give out only a part of that letter. And it certainly does not commend the wisdom or the judgment of the man holding the presidency to show that he entertained "private" views so foreign to the views which he should have held in his official capacity.

But it is not well for President Roosevelt—to look too closely into any phase of his relations with the Bunau-Varilla gang previous to the explosion that cut Panama off from the republic of which it had for decades been an integral part.

More Evidence of Increased Prices. Here is more joy for Secretary of the Treasury Shaw, the gentleman who revels in the increased cost of living and expects all the rest of us to do likewise.

Valuable testimony has been produced to show that since 1898 the actual cost of feeding the United States army, per man, has increased nearly one hundred per cent. While it cost 18 cents per man for rations in 1898, the cost last year was just a fraction less than 35 cents per man.

These facts are set forth in the annual report of General J. F. Weston, the commissary general of the army. Of all the statements concerning the cost of living this is perhaps the most significant.

The army is a wholesale purchaser of supplies and gets the advantage, therefore, of wholesale rates. The middle man is done away with and so, of course, are his profits. Supplies are purchased upon competitive bids; every precaution is taken to guard against the government being compelled to pay anything more than the lowest wholesale cost.

It is significant, also, that the purchases of the commissary department, cover exclusively staple articles, not such articles as could possibly be classed as luxuries. In other words, the army buys only the staple articles which go into the larder of the average American home.

Yet on these articles, purchased in this careful way, prices have since 1898 almost doubled. That the percentage of increase to the ordinary consumer who has to buy at retail is considerably greater than this increase in wholesale purchase for the army goes without saying.

Have the incomes of these average Americans increased in proportion to the expense?

If the republican party were made to depend for its votes at the coming election upon the men whose wages have, since 1898, been doubled, Mr. Roosevelt would not be in the running.

Municipal Advertising.

(From The National Advertiser.) Apropos of the subject of advertising a magazine, has this to say:

"Publicity is the key to twentieth-century business success. He who has a business must get that business before the world, or the world will pass him by. The general laws which apply to ordinary business institutions also apply to municipalities and cities. To settle up a country you must exploit its resources; to build up a city you must advertise to the world its industrial and commercial possibilities."

"Municipal advertising has become a distinct branch of business publicity. Chambers of commerce, boards of trade and commercial clubs are the mediums through which a municipality can best reach the general public. Every community has its strong points as a place of residence or as a commercial or manufacturing center. These facts must be set forth and given to the public in some way if there is to be any progress. The question is, how can it best be done? The secretary should know what the wants and how to go after it. Get your goods before the people who want to buy."

"JUST FROM GEORGIA."

A Merry Night in Georgia. Come in, dear, you fellows—Hoot enough for me? Don't you hear the fiddler's feet Patten on the floor?

Hands round, an' welcome! Go it—too an' heel! Give us now "Old Georgia" An' the old Virginny Reel!

Come in, dear, you fellows—Summer's joys are lost, But—what's the odds, since Winter Brings the fiddle, with the frost?

Hands round, an' welcome! Dance the world away! Give us now "Old Georgia" An' "Darlin' Nelly Gray!"

Come in, dear, old people—Room enough for you! Think you're in the bright times When you swung your ladies, too!

Hands round, an' welcome! Winter shadders creep; But the big oak fire is blazing, An' we'll dance the world to sleep!

Holiday Times in Bilville. The Georgia poets are the best cotton pickers we ever saw. They're all getting three square meals a day now.

Thank the Lord for home, and bright fires, and time enough to dance the rheumatism to death! One additional evidence of prosperity is the moonshine distilleries have all moved six miles nearer town.

When you meet Trouble in the big road now he climbs a tree to "get so high that he can't hear Joy play the fiddle."

Give a Georgia darkey a dram in this glorious weather, and he straightaway gets out in the sunshine and goes to dancing on a discarded barn door.

The Lord makes us thankful for all that we receive; for this is one time we are not afraid of falling into the hands of a receiver.

Jingle, jingle, silver dollar, All along the south; You will never hear us holler: "Shut your silver mouth!"

Tell us all your dreams so bright In the sunshine an' the night; You're the friend that's out of sight—Walk right in, an' welcome!

Jingle, jingle, silver dollar—Looked for you since Spring; We're at home whenever you holler—Open when you ring!

Tell us all your dreams so bright—Read 'em to us left an' right! You're the friend that's out of sight—Walk right in, an' welcome!

The cities are singing, the valleys are singing, and Good Times has on his best suit, and looks just like he's on his way to camp meeting!

Not Ready to Go Yet.

Brother Dickey was laid up with the rheumatism the other day, and his doctor said to him: "Old man, I'm afraid your time is short."

"My, my!" he exclaimed, "Providence is mighty hard on me! Looks like he might 'a' spared me till after Christmas!"

A Christmas Citizen.

I know de place whar my white folks stay, En I'll git my dram on Christmas day; En I'll work no mo' 'twel de Christmas gone.

En I feels de hungry comin' on! O, den I'll be singin' Of de Christmas psalm—Den I'll be drinkin' Of my Christmas dram!

My Christmas gif is my, Christmas dram! O, den I'll be singin' Of de Christmas psalm—Den I'll be drinkin' Of my Christmas dram!

This autumn season continues as bright as the dollars we see in our dreams. Unfortunately, however, we don't dream long, and invariably wake up to the reality that a dreamer is not a financial success.

Not Time. "I dreamed of de devil ag'in last night," said Brother Williams.

"Well, sah," said Brother Dickey, looking him over through his brass-rimmed spectacles, "You is de only man I knows on dat keeps right on sweatin' in winter, like you wuz still in de middle of July!"

Come Along, Believers. Take yo' joyful stand; Cotton, white As de snow at night—You right in de Promis' Land!

The poems of Carlon Grey are now within the reach of all, and they will sing their way into many hearts and homes.

MISSISSIPPI AND HER CONVICTS.

How That Commonwealth Deals with the Problem. The Convict Farm System.

By Hon. Frank Johnston, Ex-Attorney General of Mississippi.

Editor Constitution: In a recent issue of The Constitution there appeared a statement showing that the Georgia state convicts are earning for the state $330,000 a year under the leasing system now in force in your state, and that the convicts are leased to twelve or thirteen different lessees.

I trust that you will allow me to express some views in The Constitution in respect to the characteristics of convict leasing in the hope that the subject may be brought to the attention of the people of Georgia.

Soon after the establishment of reconstruction governments in the southern states at the close of the civil war the system commonly known as convict leasing was adopted and put into operation.

This system existed in Mississippi until it was abolished by the state constitutional convention of 1890. The convicts in this state, about a thousand in number, are now worked on lands owned by the state at agricultural labor mainly, and the net income to the state from the proceeds of their labor is not less than $150,000 a year. And this income will be largely increased when more land has been cleared and put into cultivation.

The main tract of state land on which the convicts are worked consists of 13,000 acres, all lying in one body, and situated in the Yazoo-Mississippi delta, the most fertile alluvial cotton lands in the world. About 6,000 acres of this is now open and in a fine state of cultivation, and about 4,000 more acres will be cleared up and made ready for cultivation in the course of a year.

The convicts are under the immediate and the exclusive control of state officials, and they are treated with fairness and humanity; they are well clothed, well fed, well housed and worked with proper moderation. The hospital arrangements are excellent and everything is in good order and in sanitary condition.

This method has proved, from the standpoint of humanity, as well as from an economic point of view, a complete and satisfactory solution of the convict problem.

The state of Louisiana and the state of Texas have each adopted the Mississippi convict plan with the most satisfactory results. There were two legislative investigations of the inside workings of the leasing system in Mississippi, one in the year 1884 and the other in 1888, each of which disclosed the evils and barbarities that are the inherent characteristics of that system. At each session of the legislature during the existence of the leasing system there was reformatory legislation having for its object the amelioration of the condition of the convicts, all of which proved wholly ineffectual, and the inhuman and barbarous system continued until it was absolutely abolished by the state constitutional convention of 1890.

Among the more prominent evils and abuses of convict leasing are the following:

An abnormally high death rate, amounting in some years to the astounding rate of 10 and 12 per centum per annum, which is the death rate of a great battle. A high escape rate reaching as high as 8 or 10 per centum per annum of the convict population. Inefficient clothing and food and housing and overwork and cruel and inhuman punishments often resulting in the death of the convict. Inefficient medical treatment and neglect of the sick.

This is not an overstatement, but it is a conservative and moderate generalization of the evils of convict leasing abundantly proven by the most indisputable evidence of the facts connected with that system wherever it has been tolerated. The explanation of all these abuses is that the convicts are practically under the control and almost entirely at the mercy of the lessees or sublessees, whose main purpose is to get as much out of the convicts with as little outlay as possible. The consequence is that an inferior class of men are hired as guards at a low rate of wages and being practically the masters of the convicts, they give way to their cruel and brutal impulses.

But above every consideration involved in the treatment of the subject is the fundamental moral obligation of the state to retain absolutely, directly and exclusively, the control of its convicts. Without a violation of this obligation a state cannot transfer the custody of its prisoners to any individual for his private profit.

Viewed from a correct moral standpoint, convict leasing is nothing less than a form of human slavery and it is one of the worst forms, if not the very worst form of slavery that was ever devised in the history of the world.

General John B. Gordon said on one occasion that convict leasing was worse than slavery, for the master was directly interested in the proper treatment of his slaves. Tender-hearted and humane people among us lamented over the atrocities of Siberian prison life as told by Mr. Kerensky in the pages of an American magazine a few years ago and they do not know apparently that right here in this beautiful land of ours of Christian civilization and philanthropy, of high ideals, if there are convict systems that rival, if they do not exceed, the brutalities of Siberia.

Official investigations in Mississippi disclosed the fact that in several instances convicts were literally whipped to death and that cruel and inhuman punishments were common; that the sick often died from neglect and that the death rate was sent up to the extraordinary rate of 10 per centum, when it should not have been more than 2 per centum per annum. All this appears officially in the Mississippi house Journal of 1888, and a full disclosure and history of convict leasing in Mississippi appears in volume 11 of the publications of the Mississippi Historical Society in a paper prepared for the society by Hon. J. H. Jones, of Woodville, Miss., ex-lieutenant governor of the state.

I hope that no one will think for a moment that the characteristics of the convict leasing system in Mississippi were peculiar to the institution in this state, for the truth is, the evils I have pointed out are the natural, inherent and ineradicable characteristics of convict leasing wherever it exists. This is shown in a magazine article written by Mr. George Cable in either the Century or Scribner in 1884, or about that time.

If the legislature of Georgia will take this matter up and give the inside workings of this convict leasing system in respect to the actual treatment of the convicts, a fearless and searching investigation, I venture to express the opinion confidently that there will soon be developed in your state a public opinion that will demand the complete abolition of the system.

FRANK JOHNSTON, Jackson, Miss.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

From Atlanta to the Sea!

Editor Constitution—Your able editorial, "Keep Up the Fight, and Look Toward the Sea," in Sunday's paper, has been read with much interest in Pensacola, and it should have the careful consideration of every citizen of your city.

In regard to detrimental railroad influences, Pensacola is in a very much worse condition than your city. By the very conditions and understandings between the railroad companies and the fact that Pensacola has one of the finest harbors in the world, Pensacola has the only deep water harbor on the Gulf of Mexico. The harbor is one of the safest, being perfectly landlocked. It is commodious, having ample room for the merchant marine and enough deep water anchorage beside for the combined navies of the world. Vessels can load to 25 feet a longside the wharves. The largest men of war pass in and out of the harbor at all times with perfect ease and safety. The channel is short, deep and straight. Safe anchorage may be had within 3 miles of

MRS. JAMES LONGSTREET GETS GAINESVILLE OFFICE

Widow of the distinguished Confederate general, who has been appointed postmistress at Gainesville, Ga., by President Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, October 25.—President Roosevelt today directed the appointment of Mrs. James Longstreet to be postmistress at Gainesville, Ga., to succeed Colonel Henry P. Farrow, removed on the report of an inspector that Colonel Farrow is not a resident of the community in which the postoffice is situated. Mrs. Longstreet is the widow of General James Longstreet.

Mrs. Ellen Dorth Longstreet is to receive the appointment as postmistress at Gainesville, Ga. Official notification to this effect was received yesterday in Atlanta by Colonel W. H. Johnson, United States marshal, who is the recognized head of the republican party in Georgia. This came in a telegram from Private Secretary Loh, who notified Colonel Johnson that the appointment of Mrs. Longstreet to succeed Colonel Farrow had been determined upon by President Roosevelt.

As stated in The Constitution's Washington dispatches yesterday, Colonel Henry P. Farrow, the postmaster at Gainesville, was removed upon the facts set forth in the report of Postoffice Inspector Keys, who reported that Farrow's residence was not Gainesville, and that in consequence of nonresidence, he had not given to the office that personal attention required by the regulations of the postoffice department.

The general regulations of the postoffice department state that the postmaster must reside within the delivery of the postoffice to which he is appointed; and

COLONEL PRICE RESIGNS.

School Commissioner of Colquitt County Also Tenders His Resignation.

Word has been received at the capital that Colonel W. P. Price has tendered his resignation as president of the county board of education of Lumpkin county. Colonel Price is well known all over the state, and it is to him that the development of education in Lumpkin county is largely due. His great success in pushing to the front the North Georgia Agricultural college at Dalton is well known, and he is still president of the board of trustees of that institution. It is said Colonel Price's resignation is due to the fact that the grand jury of Lumpkin county declined to listen to his advice and instead of using that county's proposition of the fund received from convict hire, for educational purposes, decided to put it into work on the public roads, as is permitted under the law. The money has heretofore been going to schools and Colonel Price considers that the action of the grand jury will greatly cripple the progress of the schools in that county.

State School Commissioner W. B. Merritt has also received notice of the resignation of John H. Smithwick, as county school commissioner of Colquitt county. Mr. Smithwick, who is a well-known lawyer of Moultrie, has decided to go to Florida to engage in the naval stores business, and it is for this reason that he has tendered his resignation. The examination for applicants to succeed him will be held at Moultrie Saturday, November 5.

PATTON MAKES GOOD ESCAPE.

Man Who Shot Pitts Last Seen Running Fast.

Toccoa, Ga., October 25.—(Special.)—James Patton, who last night shot George Pitts at the depot in this place, has apparently made good his escape. He was last seen immediately after the shooting running at top speed away from the depot. He is said to have gone in the direction of the Carolina line, which is only 6 miles from Toccoa. Pitts has suffered no serious inconvenience as a result of the two slight flesh wounds inflicted by Patton's shots.

SIX YEARS IN PEN FOR A. A. WALLINE

Slayer of Frank Brett Found Guilty of Manslaughter.

Case Was Concluded Yesterday Afternoon and Jury Was Out One Hour. Judge Reagan Imposed Sentence of Six Years at Labor.

Six years in the penitentiary for Andrew A. Walline, convicted of manslaughter.

So said the judge in quiet tones yesterday afternoon, and so ended the drama begun one sunny Sabbath morning in August when Walline drew his pistol and fired and Frank Brett fell quivering in death at his feet.

From the instant that pistol flashed in the morning sunlight to the moment when the solemn words fell from the lips of the judge, a little over two months had elapsed—two months crowded with heartache and suffering, fear and dread for those who loved Walline, crowded with heartaches and the pang of a great grief for those who loved Frank Brett.

There has been the grim old court room in Fulton county's hall of justice ever witnessed a more dramatic trial than that of Andrew Walline. It consumed less time than stubbornly fought capital cases usually do, but the events of the two days taken up in the trial were intensely interesting.

There was scarcely space for a dozen more men to stand in the court room when the jury came in with its verdict of "manslaughter," and a little later when Judge Reagan imposed his sentence the court room was packed to its utmost capacity.

This case was dramatic from the very beginning. The death of Brett was followed by the death of Walline, and the latter's trial was equally as dramatic. The public is familiar with what transpired on Monday, but the events of Tuesday were even more calculated to attract human interest.

When the court adjourned on Monday evening, Lowry Arnold, one of Walline's attorneys, had just finished his argument, the first one addressed to the jury by either side. When court was called to order again yesterday morning, the first business was the argument of Solicitor General Hill.

Long before the hour for the court to convene at 9 o'clock—the court room was filled by hundreds of people. It was a mixed throng of men and women, the colored clothing and feathered headgear of the latter giving the dingy chamber of sorrows an air of unwelcome gaiety. Above in the gallery was an unbroken sea of black faces peering down on the scene below.

The principal actors in the drama under consideration were seated under a cloud of gloom. Mrs. Brett, with her relatives and friends, only a few feet from Walline and his relatives and friends.

Solicitor General Hill arose. A hush fell over the assembly. He came quietly up to the little open space just in front of the chairs occupied by the jurors. His first words were in a low voice, but in the stillness they were distinctly audible in every corner of the big room.

He began by saying he had no desire to persecute any human being, that he only sought the execution of justice, and that in the case at the bar no other end or aim was in his mind. It was merely a matter of duty with him, he said. Walline kept his eyes on the speaker, listening attentively to all he said. Mrs. Brett, in her widow's mourning, did likewise. But neither seemed excited; their attention was no different from that of the spectators.

Solicitor General Hill went on. His manner grew more fervent, his figures more striking and eloquent. Now and then he gave utterance to some impassioned sentence, beautiful and sonorous in its diction and thrilling in its musical tones in which it was spoken. The eyes of the jury were riveted on him. The spectators were almost breathlessly silent.

By a strange phenomenon the word seemed to have been passed along the streets that "Charlie" Hill was making one of the greatest court-room speeches of his life. Men who had heard none of the evidence bowed their way softly as near as possible to the jammed doorways.

For at least two hours the speaker thus held the attention of his auditors, and when he finally resumed his seat and the faint hum passed through the masses of people all about, a great many whispered that Fulton's solicitor general had rarely ever made a better speech.

Reuben Arnold Speaks. Then Reuben Arnold arose to close the argument, the defense, by reason of offering no sworn testimony, having the right to open and conclude the argument. He was smiling, his face again was addressed to the jury in a conversational tone. His air was not that of one who delivers a speech, but of one who relates in conversation some fact thoroughly understood by his auditors.

Rarely was this conversational tone abandoned, and yet everything the speaker said could be heard just as distinctly as the remarks of the solicitor general. At times he poked fun at the theories of the prosecution. Again he drew a sparkling rapier of satire and thrust these words through and through. Again his words were acid and he seemed to drop them one by one on the point in the prosecution to which at the moment he addressed himself. But always his manner was that of one who regards his auditors as of exactly the same mind as himself. Some times he almost poked fun at himself for discussing the case at all for the benefit of the jury.

His speech was divided by the noon recess, but it was the same in kind after

GREGG'S BOOK OF CARTOONS PROVES INSTANTLY POPULAR

Constitution's Staff Artist
Publishes Fifty Excellent
Cartoons in Book Form.

"CARTOONS," by Lewis Crumley Gregg, staff artist of The Constitution, is one of the most interesting of the fall publications. The book has just made its appearance and is from the press of Fiske & Davies. Lewis Gregg has won an enviable reputation as a cartoonist, not only in the south, but throughout the country. His cartoons have attracted wide attention and have been copied freely by the most critical and exclusive magazines and newspapers in the country.

Mr. Gregg is a native of Atlanta, and though he spent a number of years in the art schools of New York, the major portion of his work has been done since his connection with The Constitution. The Atlanta News says of Mr. Gregg's book:

"What promises to prove one of the most satisfying of the holiday books is the volume of newspaper cartoons by Lewis Crumley Gregg, whose telling drawings in The Atlanta Constitution have been a source of amusement and delight to the readers of that journal. The advance copies of the collection have just been issued from the press. The volume, which is dedicated to Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution, will soon be placed on sale at all the local book shops in the state. It contains a number of the artist's best cartoons which have appeared during the past year or so, and the arrangements are alike a credit to Mr. Gregg and the publishers."

"The book is bound in limp covers with a clever picture of the artist, whose head appears bursting through a miniature front page of The Constitution. The cartoons are printed upon deckle-edge paper and so well done is the printing that each appears like an etching instead of line cut. The printer and binder have combined talents and the result is a volume at once tasteful and unique in appearance."

"There are three classes of cartoonists. One draws well but has no ideas; another has ideas but does not draw well, and the third possesses ideas and draws well. That Mr. Gregg belongs to the latter class is a glance at his book will amply demonstrate."

"Not only has he clever command of his pen, but he has a happy faculty of drawing. When ingenious subjects are given upon one the longer they are regarded. Take, for example, the drawing of President Roosevelt's head, in which every feature is made up of some warlike instrument. It required genius to evolve a picture of that kind, and it dinner as before, though he did not speak as long as the solicitor general all told. When he concluded Judge Reagan charged the jury, and the twelve men, sworn to the case of Walline, retired to deliberate upon a verdict. That was at 2:30 o'clock.

Both Reuben and Lowry Arnold left the court room, and Solicitor General Hill did likewise. Attorney John W. Moore, who assisted the solicitor general, then called another case, a negro burglary case, and the jury was struck. The crowd in the court room remained seated while the other case progressed, waiting for the jury that sat behind closed doors to deliberate on the case of Walline. That sitting between his mother and his brother, Mrs. Brett also remained, surrounded by her sister and other relatives.

Verdict Brought in. The minutes went by slowly until 3:25, when the jury asked permission to bring in its verdict. At 3:30 the twelve men, sworn to the case of Walline, the foreman, in the lead carrying the indictment against Walline in his hand. This paper he delivered to Attorney Moore.

There was a stir in the court room. The thronged spectators leaned forward. The thronged spectators leaned forward. Deputy Sheriff Parkison rapped for order. "Just a minute," said Judge Reagan, "there must be no demonstration or noise when this verdict is read. If anything of that kind takes place at all it must be otherwise. Proceed. Publish the verdict, Moore."

Attorney Moore read slowly: "This is the case of the state against A. A. Walline, charged with the murder of Frank Brett. We the jury find the defendant guilty of manslaughter. C. Walter Smith, foreman."

"Take seats, gentlemen," said Deputy Sheriff Parkison. The trial of the burglary case was then resumed, but a few minutes later Harvey Hill, who is connected with the firm of Arnold & Arnold, entered the court room. He asked the privilege of "polling" the jury, and the twelve men were called back. Clerk Frank Myers read their names, one by one, Judge Reagan saying to each as his name was called:

"What say you, Mr. Juror, is this or is it not your question each juror made the reply: "It is." After the jury had been thus polled it was dismissed for the day. Perhaps half an hour later Reuben

LEWIS C. GREGG.
Staff Artist of The Constitution.
Whose Attractive Book of Cartoons Has Just Been Published.

takes an artist to whip the idea into such shape that it forces itself upon the reader. Mr. Gregg is a graduate of the Art Student's League of New York, an institution which has turned out many artists whose names are as familiar to the reading public today as are the unpronounceable cognomens of Russian and Japanese army leaders at the front. While at the league Mr. Gregg developed a decided style which has made his drawing distinctive and easily recognized.

"That he is regarded as a cartoonist of rare ability is shown by the fact that Mr. Roosevelt's name, in a statement of review, have from time to time reproduced his cartoons on national and international subjects. About the time Mr. Roosevelt's name was signed was attracting attention Mr. Gregg drew a picture of the president astride a giant stick. The bird on a globe suspended from its bill and the caption of the drawing indicated that it should be Mr. Roosevelt's plume."

"When the picture was printed it made an immediate and flattering hit. The president wrote a letter of appreciation to the artist, at the same time declaring that which Mr. Gregg had pointed out so cleverly. A copy of the letter from Mr. Roosevelt is contained in Mr. Gregg's book. In addition to this, the artist has drawn a picture of Secretary of State John Hay afloat in a drawing made of the author of 'Jim Blodson' when he was down at Thomaston, Ga., on a brief visit."

"But one must see Mr. Gregg's book to fully appreciate his subtle humor and his masterly manner of handling subjects. A feature of the volume is a graceful introduction by R. W. McAdam, a writer for The Constitution, and a delightful Mr. McAdam is one of Mr. Gregg's confidants on The Constitution, and is in a position to thoroughly appreciate the artist's work."

Arnold appeared in court, and Judge Reagan announced himself ready to sentence the defendants, and the court has decided to make it six years at hard labor."

Sentence is Passed.

The penalty fixed for voluntary manslaughter in the criminal code is not less than one nor more than twenty years. Judge Reagan made no response to Mr. Arnold's appeal, but directed the prisoner to stand, after which he said: "It is in the discretion of the court to make your sentence any term from one to twenty years, and the court has decided to make it six years at hard labor."

There was a moment of confusion, a shuffling of feet. Mrs. Brett and her companions arose and walked from the court room, her steps were dropped down so as to cover her face. Walline's mother, brother and friends crowded around him. They talked together for a time and then the prisoner was taken back to jail.

Before he left the court house Mr. Arnold was asked what he would make any further steps in the case. He answered: "I have not yet decided."

MANSHIP LECTURES TONIGHT.

Famous Mississippian to Appear Before the Atlanta Lecture Association.

Hon. Luther Manship, the inimitable story teller, of Mississippi, will give one of his evenings, "Song and Story," before the Atlanta Lecture Association Thursday evening. Mr. Manship opened the Macon Lyceum last evening with this lecture and was enthusiastically received by a large audience, composed of Mercer and Wesleyan students, and the representative citizens of Macon. The Macon Telegraph of yesterday has the following to say in regard to his entertainment there:

"Mr. Manship kept his audience in laughter throughout the two hours of his lecture. His reference to the negro of slavery time was touching and humorous, and he handled the negro dialect with almost perfect imitation. He dealt almost exclusively with the negro of slavery time. In the references to the old negro and his distinctly southern characteristics, many stories true to life were told."

A large number of seats have already been sold for the lecture Thursday, and it is believed that one of the best audiences of the season will greet Mr. Manship on his return date here.

SAUSAGE CASE DISMISSED. SONS TO MEET WITH VETERANS

But Judge Broyles Warns C. H. Meckel, Butcher, to Be More Careful in the Future.

The case made by Inspector Rosser against C. H. Meckel, of 55 Highland avenue, butcher, charged with violating city ordinance in selling bad meats, was dismissed by Recorder Broyles yesterday afternoon, but not before he had warned Mr. Meckel to be more careful in the future.

It was claimed by the inspector that Mr. Meckel, who runs a sausage factory, had, through his agents, peddled bad sausage through the streets, and that other bad meat, found in a tub in the factory, was intended to be ground into sausage.

The defense stated that Mr. Meckel was innocent of any wrongdoing in the matter, and that if any fault had been committed in the matter it resulted through the error of his employees rather than through his own carelessness. Mr. Broyles, one of his employees, stated that he was just about to sort the meat; that is, take the bad from the good when the inspector came in and made his charge. In regard to the sausage which was being taken through the streets, it was stated that this was done in ignorance, and that as soon as Mr. Meckel learned it was bad, he ordered it returned to the factory at once and disposed of.

After hearing all the evidence, the recorder declared that as the case was in doubt he would dismiss Mr. Meckel, but asked him to be more careful in the future. He also complimented the inspector on his work, and urged him to continue a vigilant watch for violations of the law.

Da-y-Fain.

THE marriage yesterday of Miss Beatrice Day and Mr. Joel C. Fain was one of quiet circumstance, yet beautiful and impressive.

The ceremony was performed at 4 o'clock at the residence of Rev. Father Buzin, who officiated, and there were present a few of the relatives of the bride and bridegroom, who had only opportunity to extend their congratulations after the marriage, when Mr. and Mrs. Fain left the city for a bridal trip west.

The bride was gowned in brown, and she was strikingly handsome, the tall suit and hat of velvet and fur being most becoming. Her only attendant, Mrs. Howard Bosworth, of Birmingham, was elegantly attired in a gown and hat of ecrú colored lace. Bouquets of roses completed the toilet of both the ladies. Mr. John T. Lively acted as best man.

While the wedding was thus a very private one, it had its extensive interest, since the bride is a bright, capable young woman who has many friends, and Mr. Fain is a man of substantial popularity.

Japanese Spider Web.

ONE of the prettiest of the autumn parties among the younger social set was Miss Mary Brent Smith's Japanese spider web party last night, when she entertained 100 of the younger belles and beaux, her guests of honor being Miss Anne Sorrells, of Dallas, Texas, the guest of Miss Harriet Ellis, and Miss Irene Walker, of Monroe, the guest of Miss Harriet Ellis.

The whole house was filled with a network of silver threads that started in the lower floor and wound in intricate manner over the house to the third floor, where they ended in a dainty Japanese souvenir for each guest, the whole idea of the web being suggested by a Japanese exhibit at the St. Louis fair. There were special souvenirs at the end of two threads, the one for the young ladies being a silver hat pin receiver and for the young men there was a silver match box. A great deal of merriment naturally arose over the unraveling of the web, and Wurm's orchestra, playing popular Japanese airs, furnished a pleasing accompaniment.

The house was appropriately decorated

To Miss Harris.

A SMALL affair last night which proved most enjoyable was the card party given by Mrs. W. A. Wimblish for her niece, Miss Louise Harris, whose marriage to Mr. H. Clay Moore will occur next Wednesday.

The house was prettily decorated in yellow and white, chrysanthemums being used with a profusion of palms besides, and eucure made the evening's amusement. The prizes were numerous and handsome, those for the ladies including a comb and brush, tray of china hand painted in chrysanthemums, and a hand-painted wishing slipper, and for the gentlemen a wishbone stick pin and an ash tray in hand-painted china. The special prize Miss Harris was a stick pin in a design of arrow-pierced hearts.

After the game a delicious supper was served. The guests, who included the Harris-Moore bridal party and a few others, were: Misses Louise Harris, Ruth Kelly, Louise Dooly, Carrie Sannett, Marguerite Hemphill, Martha Harlan, Alma Pope, Katherine Patty, Bessie Shaw, Maud Fuller, Messrs. Clay Moore, Roy Rogers, James Clayton, Henry Kennedy, Thomas Jones, Neal Harris, Comer Moore, Clarence Haverly, Preston Hill, Ivan Allen and Will Allen.

Rothschild-Samuels.

A BEAUTIFUL wedding last night was that of Miss Etta Rothschild and Mr. Sol Samuels, which took place at 6 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rothschild, on South Pryor street.

The whole lower floor was thrown together for reception and handsomely decorated, bamboo and palms with white chrysanthemums and ferns carrying out a green and white color effect. The fringes were heavily fringed with bamboo and branches of it were used with picturesque effect to frame the windows and mantels and the arches between the rooms. A white and gold color scheme made a background for the bride's party during the ceremony, palms were banded at the base of all the mantels, and there were waves of the white cut flowers on all sides.

Wurm's orchestra, stationed in the hallway, played the wedding music and an appropriate programme during the dinner which followed. The long tables were handsomely appointed and the decorations were in green and white lighted by crystal candelabra. An elegant menu of ten courses was served and the dinner scene was a brilliant one. The bride is a strikingly handsome young woman and her bright brunette beauty and graceful physique were at their best in her wedding trip and gown was an exquisite one of sheer white silk, wholly handmade and rich in insertion, and medallions of val-de-lence lace. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and swansons, and her going-away gown was a becoming one of brown, with velvet hat of the same color trimmed with autumn leaves. Her cousin, Miss Helen Engel, of New York, was maid of honor, and she wore a beautiful gown of white spangled net with a great deal of handwork and a sash and sash ends of Persian ribbon. She carried pink roses.

Mr. Samuels, who is a prominent citizen of Atlanta, successful and popular, was attended by his brother, Mr. Adolph Samuels, and Dr. Marx officiated.

The bride's mother was elegantly gowned in black chiffon taffetas with a berth of point lace.

There were many handsome presents received, among them a substantial check from the bride's father, and remembrances from the large acquaintance of the bride and groom in other cities as well as Atlanta.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mr. Moore Rothschild and Miss Rothschild, of Savannah; Miss Stella Marks, of Bessemer, Ala., and Mr. Arthur Flannery, of Athens.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuels will go west on their wedding trip.

Caldwell-McGinty.

A QUIET home wedding was that of Miss Daisy Caldwell and Mr. Stewart McGinty, which took place yesterday morning at 11 o'clock, at the home of the bride's mother on Richardson street.

Dr. W. W. Landrum officiated, and during the ceremony the bride and groom stood in the front drawing room before an improvised altar of palms, quantities of bamboo, palms and American beauty roses were used in decorating the house, and the wedding, though very simple, was one of the prettiest of the fall.

Miss Laura Caldwell, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Miss Edith Thompson bridesmaid. They preceded the bride, who entered with the groom, and wore becoming tailor suits, one in blue and the other in tan, and carried bouquets of parma violets.

INJUNCTION CASE TRIED TOMORROW

Hearing Will Take Place Before Judge Newman.

Attorney General Hart and the Lawyers for the Atlanta Freight Bureau are Ready for the Effort to Uphold the Georgia Railroad Commission.

The hearing of the case of the Central Trust Company, of New York, against the Georgia railroad commission, which is an application for injunction, will be taken up tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock by Judge W. T. Newman, of the United States court.

The attorneys for the railroads will be present and the state of Georgia will be represented by Attorney General Hart, Charles T. Hopkins, Luther Z. Rosser, George C. Spence, Hoke Smith, W. A. Wimblish and others.

The application of the railroads is for an injunction to prevent the enforcement of the orders in circulars 301 and 302 of the Georgia railroad commission, which shall charge no more from Atlanta to Athens, Macon, Columbus and Augusta for manufactured articles than they charge from this city to those points when the manufactured articles come from a distance. Circular 302 provides that the rates from coast points on strips shall be practically the same to Atlanta as to Alabama points.

The Central Trust Company of New York asks for an injunction to prevent the state of Georgia from enforcing this order and to prevent the Central of Georgia railway from obeying it. The application is based upon three points principally. The first is that the applicant is trustee for a second preferential non-cumulative income bond of the Central and has this year, for the first time, been promised a dividend of 2 per cent upon the property, the contention being that a reduction of rates would prevent the paying of interest next year. The second is that the railroad commission has not allowed for a sufficient return upon the capital invested in the Central of Georgia. The third is that the railroad commission is endeavoring to reduce interstate rates by using intrastate rates as a means, and that in interfering with the interstate rates it is exceeding its authority.

The whole attack is upon the power of the Georgia railroad commission. If the case now in court is decided against the railroads, the effectiveness of the organization will be destroyed and the attorneys for the railroads will have carried out their threat to tie the hands of the railroad commission of the state and ignore it in the future.

Naturally the Atlanta freight bureau is interested with the state in upholding the Georgia railroad commission against intrastate attacks upon that body. The attorneys for the Atlanta freight bureau have given considerable time and attention to a study of the present case, and they will be present in the United States court tomorrow morning for the purpose of opposing the efforts of the corporations.

BY ROCHESTEREastern League Club Gets Cracker, According to Commercial.According to The Commercial Tribune, of Cincinnati, Nig Clarke, the crack catcher of the Cracker team of last year, has been signed by Manager Bucken-berger, of the Rochester team.It is impossible to say where this information was secured by the paper printing the story, but at all events the story is improbable.Nig Clarke is at present bound firmly and absolutely to one of two clubs. He will either become the property of the Cleveland American League club or of the Atlantic team. And the chances are decidedly in favor of Atlanta at present.Manager Kelley, of Toledo, has secured Grubb, shortstop of the Pine Bluff team, for his next year aggregation. It would seem as if the little leagues in this part of the country are to be stripped of all players showing the least promise before the end of the drafting season comes.Probably the biggest score piled up so far this season was made Saturday when the University of Michigan, Yost's great team, snowed West Virginia under the daisies 130 to 0. Think of that.Frank Davies, of the Tech football team, has been elected president of the Tech Athletic Association. At the meeting of the association the sum of $810 was raised for athletics.The Pittsburgh baseball club has closed with Childs, of the Atlanta club, and with Smith, of the Charleston club.

BUSCHELL FORFEITS BOND.

Greek, Accused of Mayhem, Failed
To Appear in Recorder's Court.Because he failed to appear in court when his case was called yesterday afternoon, Judge Broyles ordered forfeited the bond of $200 of George Buschell, arrested some time ago on the charge of mayhem.A charge of drunk and disorderly, booked against his victim, Robert Pope, was dismissed by the recorder. The case against him was not tried yesterday on account of the fact that he was suffering from his injured ear and other injuries, alleged to have been inflicted by the Greek.About a week ago the police broke into a room in the Brown house, at the request of others, and found there Buschell drunk, lying on a bed, and Pope, bloody and hardly able to stand, dazed by his agony.Pope told his story to the recorder yesterday. He had never met Buschell, the Greek, before, said he, though he had often seen him around town. Buschell is said to be a giant, while Pope is weak and unable to put up a fight if necessary.The two went to the Brown house, and there secured a room from a negro woman.
On entering the room Pope went to bed, and Buschell laid down on the bed."I was feeling sick," said Pope yesterday, "and wanted to go to sleep. I was fast asleep when I knew Buschell threw his arm around and across my chest, just like this," and he imitated the action."I threw off his arm and told him not to do that. Again he did it, and again the arm was thrown back. The third time I could stand it no longer, and, when throwing his arm back, followed it with a hard backhanded blow as I could give."As soon as I had given that backhanded jab, he became furious and climbing on me, declared that he was going to fix me.
He pinned down my arms and began to pound me in the face and around the head. He was a bigger and stronger than I, and I could do nothing, that is, little at least, to defend myself. Finally I managed to free one arm and turned to hit him."In a moment he had pinned both of my arms, and drew me to him, then beginning to chew on my arm, he began to struggle and struggling as best I could, we fell off the bed together. Finally I got away from him, and at the advice of the woman, who came to the door, slipped into a closet, where I put on my clothing.The police have orders to arrest Buschell and bring him to court to answer the charge against him.

You've Heard of Inspirational Advertisements: This Is One of Them.
It's Talky, It's Chatty, It's Long---And It's Absolutely True.

Read this advertisement.

It wasn't worked out laboriously. It isn't swollen with a mass of extraneous matter. It isn't padded with stereotyped cuts, burlesques of styles. But it is PACKED with solid facts.

Every word ran off the advertising pen spontaneously, naturally, voluntarily. We didn't have to pause in the process to manufacture reasons, to invent shams or to create subterfuges of ANY sort. The writer grasps the potentialities of the business—and the simple language that tells of its power costs no effort at all. Words—mere words—never did strengthen an advertisement. But words that stand for truth do. And it is the truth in this announcement that gives it its force. Truth crystal clear; truth naked of bombast; truth stripped of hyperbole; truth---the whole truth---appealing as it does to all who read with intelligence.

We own our factory, we own our retail building, we own ourselves, we personally direct the production of our Clothing, we also personally control its sale at retail---coming in daily contact with the best class of people who buy the best class of Ready-made Clothing. All this being so, is it any wonder that we are in a position to do better by you than any other store? We think it is---we know it is.

Sack Suits. Main Floor.

Sack Suits for business, for traveling, for general knock-about wear—Sack Suits that have snap and knack and style to them.

An Eiseman Bros.' Sack Suit is different from all others that are ready-made. The nearest approach yet to custom productions. Their fit and grace and long lasting qualities are derived from the combination of fine materials and painstaking workmanship. Prices range from $10.00 to $35.00.

Prince Albert Suits. Main Floor.

Our Prince Albert Suits are a development. We've applied years—well on to forty years—of thought and study and progressive tailoring to bring them up to their present high standard of elegance.

Look at the shoulders, look at the collar, look at the lapels, look at the front, look at the fit at the waistline, look at the drapery of the skirt—and if you know what a Prince Albert Coat should be you will pronounce these ideal. They are surpassed only by our finest custom productions. Much of our success with this fashionable garment is due to our invariable rule of using only the choicest adaptable fabrics. Prince Albert Suits, $18.00 to $40.00.

Overcoats Main Floor.

Easiest thing in the world to make claims concerning Overcoats. Promises may be put on record without half an effort. But proof and performance are not quite so smooth. There's where the average Clothier oftenest stumbles and balks.

Well, here are the Overcoats—long counters high-piled with them. We submit any or all of them to sustain the statements we make.

Best values on earth. And that doesn't mean the lowest prices. But it does mean

More real quality, more real style, more real goodness and more real grace for the same money than any other retailer offers.

Pause anywhere among the Overcoats—among the long, loose ones; among the short boxy ones; among the knee-length snug ones; among the closely-clinging Paddocks—and you'll be confronted with overwhelming evidence that maintains all we say—$10.00 to $35.00.

Men's and Boys' Furnishings Main Floor.

Include: Shirts, Gloves, Neckwear, Underwear, Half Hose, Collars—don't forget we sell quarter size Collars---Cuffs, Suspenders, Pajamas, Night Shirts, Sweaters---everything that's new, serviceable and reasonable.

Cutaway Suits. Main Floor.

Cutaway Suits are just as popular as they ever were. The completely equipped Winter wardrobe must contain one of them. They meet a demand that fastidious dressers can't afford to ignore. Some occasions are too formal for a happy-go-lucky Sack Suit and too informal for the dignity of a Prince Albert. It is at such a time that the Cutaway performs its manifest mission. We have them in black, browns, grays and quiet color mixes—$15.00 to $35.00.

Full-dress and Tuxedo Suits. Main Floor.

These are the flowers of artistic tailoring. They are cut from accurate ultra models and put together with slow, sure, careful stitches.

Not a single detail is slurred. No matter how distinguished the social function; no matter how rich and exclusive the company may be—the man who wears one of our Full-dress or Tuxedo Suits may feel at thorough ease in respect to the appearance of his Clothes. The ideal satisfaction our patrons enjoy—the physical comfort and mental peace—is worth as much as the material content they secure—$20.00 to $35.00.

Youths' Clothing. Main Floor.

Trunks, Bags, Valises. Third Floor.

Candidly we don't like to sell low-priced Trunks and Valises—but as a business looking out for the tastes and incomes of all the people—we are compelled to do it.

We have the best stock of low-priced Trunks and Valises in Atlanta. Take our $5.00 Suit Case, for instance. We know that no store this side of the Atlantic—or the other side, for that matter, can match it. No use stopping to describe it. Come and examine one of them. That's the most convincing way for you—and for us.

But this is a special and an emphatic plea for the higher-class Trunks and Bags and Valises.

It is not so much to our interest to sell them as it is to your interest to buy them.

The violence of baggage-handlers makes short shrift of frail Trunks. If we sell you a cheap one you'll come and buy another within a comparatively short time. If we sell you the best it is sure to render splendid service from ten to twenty years—according to the extent of your travels. And we make relatively as much on the lower as on the higher priced ones.

A wise customer who buys foolishly—but knows better—suggested this advertisement. We sold him a Trunk for $8.00 yesterday. He said:

"I bought a Trunk in 1886—nineteen years ago—for $40.00. It's a bit battered and scarred now, but still good for years of solid wear. Since that time, when on the eve of railroad journeys, I have had to meet the unyielding exigencies of more baggage created by the accretion of my family, and I have always done what I have just done—bought a cheap Trunk."

"In that way I have seen eight or nine Trunks costing from $6.00 to $10.00 each, splintered and sent to the rubbish heap during the still virile life of my $40.00 one."

You catch the point? Every extra dollar you spend for a Trunk is just that much saved—saved in the extra service that the better Trunk will give. We have plenty of low-priced Trunks. We have plenty of high-priced Trunks. It's for you to decide which it shall be.

Boys' Buster Brown Suits. Second Floor.

The King of Boys' Suits is making a household name of Buster Brown. Wherever there's a boy in the home—whether he's a gentle little pet or an embryo desperado there should be a Buster Brown—the nobbiest, nattiest, jauntiest, charmingest style of the period. We foresaw the immense rage that Buster Brown Suits would create and lost no time in securing a monopoly of them for this section. They've made the hit we expected they would make. You know that NOW as well as we do. If any dealer offers you a suit and hints that it is a Buster Brown model you may be sure that it is a spurious imitation and by the use of the name he is making himself liable to legal prosecution. It is to the honor of local competition that no such infringement has recently come to our knowledge. Buster Brown Suits are in all the favorite weaves and we show about ninety patterns and color effects.

Other Suits for Boys Second Floor.

Our second floor is the parents' haven; the boys' delight; competitors' despair. There is where you may see the biggest and brightest collection of Boys' Suits and Overcoats in the South.

We please the most critical without any trouble to themselves or to us.

Please them at every point—variety, quality, style, price.

Men's and Boys' Hats Main Floor.

Yes, this Hattery is simply overflowing with all the good and worthy styles. Call for a Hat we can't show---if we ought to---Soft, Stiff or Silk---and we'll acknowledge the corn. Yesterday we met a poet wearing a Straw Hat and a lady of fashion wearing a Fur Hat. There you have the two extremes. And our Hat department meets them both---for men.

Men's and Boys' Shoes. Main Floor.

A silver article impressed with the word Sterling settles the question of quality for you. Just as "Sterling" is the magic word in the silver-smith's domain, removing all doubt and risk, so is the significant word Hess in the realm of Shoemaking. Hess' name on a Shoe—that's all you can ask for. It means that the Shoes are the best Shoes made in the whole world. Hess is renowned in just that way. The reliability of Hess Shoes for Men and Boys is beyond all cavil. No intelligent person can argue against such a securely established fact. You'll never, never regret buying a pair of Hess Shoes. And do not forget that this is the only store in Atlanta where they can be bought.

RAIN IS BILLED FOR ALL GEORGIA

Storm Moving from Texas Coast Will Break Long Drought.

Local Forecaster Marbury States that Conditions for a General Rain Are More Favorable than at Any Time for the Past Six Weeks.

The weather today is likely to include rain and colder in the afternoon.

This forecast of the Atlanta weather bureau is sure to prove about the best news that has floated into Georgia this long time. Local Forecaster Marbury said yesterday that on the morning of the day previous there was no rain in sight, but that better things were in store for the entire state of Georgia unless every sign of the weather map goes wrong.

The conditions are these. The weather map yesterday morning showed a low barometer down around the gulf portion of Texas. The storm that developed caused general rains in that section with reports of rain at Abilene, Taylor, Corpus Christi, Palestine and Port Smith.

Mr. Marbury said that the storm was coming this way and as soon as the storm flags were raised over the Empire building telephone messages came pouring into the office asking what the black flag meant. When they were informed that it meant rain they apologized and said that it had been so long since they had seen one that they had forgotten its meaning.

The storm that is billed this way is not a shower, but a regular out and rain and unless some atmospheric changes turn it from its regular course it is expected that an inch or more will come to quench thirsty Georgia and cool the parched tongue that has been fairly blistering from the wiregrass section to the mountains toward the Tennessee line.

Rain Means Much. Of course it would be impossible to estimate the value of a good rain at this time, but some of the conservative estimates run as high as $100,000. The drought has simply paralyzed farming interests and so far there has simply been no fall plowing or planting in Georgia. This has been on account of the baked soil that refused to offer those conditions so necessary for mellowing the ground and permitting the germination of the seed. Garden truck has withered and wilted until in many localities it has proved a total loss. The rejuvenating influence of a warm rain at this time will mean a new lease of life and its value can hardly be estimated.

As previously reported, pastures have been actually drying up and the stock have suffered greatly in consequence. Wells, too, in all parts of the state and over the entire cotton belt for that matter have dried up and the benefit of a rain in this direction will be great.

The storm that is on its way here is expected to follow the gulf coast and go on northward. In this way Georgia is right in the line of the rain which much needs and the rain will be general in all parts of the state.

Another important feature of the coming storm is the fact that it will not only bring temporary relief, but it will also augur well for the future. It is a scientific fact that when a long drought is once broken frequent rains follow in the wake of the first and the effects of the long dry spell are relieved.

Drought Was a Jonah.

In speaking of this Mr. Marbury stated yesterday that there had been a number of times during the last six weeks when the conditions were favorable for showers, but that the dryness of the atmosphere had had the effect of dissipating these same showers and they did not arrive.

Temperatures all over the state are lower than at any time within the memory of the present generation. It is not expected that the coming storm will have much effect on these streams and rivers which are present so dry that it will lick up every man the breaking of the long drought it is expected that more rains will follow and the low condition of the rivers which has proved such a menace to many towns and cities in the way of shutting off power for manufacturing and other industries will be remedied.

According to yesterday's weather map the storm developed in the west gulf and entered the coast region of Texas causing general rains in that section.

Moving in over the west and northwest was an area of high pressure and low temperature, central near North Platte, Neb. There is a second area of high barometer central over Georgia and low temperature, central near North Platte, Neb. The weather is cloudy over the Mississippi valley and along the northern border of the map and on the south Atlantic coast. The temperatures in Atlanta were too near the normal to be of general interest.

The "and."

Harry Beresford, in "Our New Man," was the attraction at the Grand last night. And once more Mr. Beresford was THE attraction at the Grand. Without a doubt, he is one of the very best of the young American comedians, and his awkwardness is so pathetically funny that it really approaches the art of real genius. This was proved by the way in which he played and made the most of a part offering rather few opportunities.

The comedy itself is rather complicated, and decidedly "effortful" most of the time. There are some good lines and some funny situations, but undoubtedly these are for the most part the work of Mr. Beresford. As for the company of players, they might have just stepped from some dramatic school, and they were such veritable amateurs withal that their efforts may have been responsible for the poor showing. Every moment that Mr. Beresford was on the stage was genuine entertainment.

With his departure to the wings the comedy savored of the lack of experience that is expected at the annual Christmas Sunday school entertainment, and forgiven for the same reason. All Atlanta will be glad to see Mr. Beresford return with "The Professor's Love Story," or a new company, or both. It is quite probable that he will return to some of his old successes before the close of the present season. ALAN ROGERS.

Wilson Barrett's play, "The Sign of the Cross," will be presented on a scale of rich magnificence at the Grand Friday and Saturday.

It is said that all the original scenery and effects of William Greet's London production, recently repaired by that noted artist, Matt Morgan, will be seen here.

Messrs. Fred G. Berger and R. G. Craen, for the United States and Canada, are said to have spared no expense to keep their presentation of this great drama up to the high standard set by Mr. Greet in his years of success with this play in this country, and to this end the new managers have retained in their original roles many of the members of Mr. Greet's company. The cast numbers forty players, each chosen for special ability to the requirements of this play. Entirely new costumes of costly material, rich coloring and made from the original designs are presented.

"I am well pleased with the present outlook in Atlanta. I believe God has already manifested his presence, and with that we ought to see a glorious time here. I wonder if the people of Atlanta appreciate what fine music we are having here? You know, Mr. Maxwell is a man of national reputation in his music."

on, and at Walker Street Methodist at 7:30 p. m.

The noon meetings at the First Baptist this week have been conducted so far by Dr. William E. Biederwolf, and the crowds have been increasing. The singing yesterday by Professor O. F. Pugh, the Welsh tenor, of the solo "The Man of Galilee," was greatly enjoyed. Dr. Biederwolf's earnestness and clear presentation of his subject have made a deep impression upon all who have heard him. The business men who gathered at this noon hour seem to go out strengthened for the work of the glorifying, noisy city, and refreshed by the tears and the sweetness of the turning aside for a time to worship God and to have communion there in song and prayer and praise with the Father who provides all for body and soul.

Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman resumes his preaching at the noon and mid-afternoon meetings today.

At the First Methodist last night the sermon was by Dr. Chapman.

Dr. W. W. Landrum read the scripture lesson, the fifth chapter of Romans. Dr. Chapman's text was: Romans vi:23: "For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through our Lord Jesus Christ."

He said substantially: "Paul's Roman epistle is logic set on fire. No one verse of it may be taken alone, it must always have the setting of the former statements, and be read with a view of what is to follow. Paul's powerful use of 'therefore' in three cases in this letter brings them out like mountain peaks—the therefore of 'justification by faith' of 'no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus,' and 'by the righteousness of one the free gift came' are so great that as we stand upon them we are almost bewildered. His like use of 'for' and 'but' is that of the logician. Both these words are in the text and rendered it more powerfully logical and solemn."

"The meaning meaning that includes 'sinner' and 'sinner' alike of the broad statement. 'For the wages of sin is death' comes with startling distinctness. All who have sinned, all who are stained by its pollution, are to reap the dread wages. Men need to know of the sinfulness of sin, and to realize that nothing but the atonement of God can relieve it, or release man from its power. Sin separates friends, breaks up households, makes a demon of desperation out of the man who thinks he needs no savior. It is dangerous in its small beginnings. The gigantic trees of California, whose proportions stagger us, bear seed that are smaller than a radish seed. The seed has wrapped in it all the possibilities of the grown tree. Sin is bondage, it is hard to leave off smallest habit, it is impossible to break away from sin unaided."

"The greatest sin is the rejection of Jesus Christ as our Savior. This is not my own definition, it is from God's own word. There are two remedies suggested, the first is by man—change the sinner's environment, give him better clothes, etc., etc.—but this has naught to do with it. Environment does not keep out sin, it did not prevent Adam's sin, and no environment could surpass Eden's happy bowers."

"God's plan is for us to accept Jesus Christ, put your life in touch with Him, begin, and no one will be more sorry to see him go than he himself was to leave. He left yesterday with the body for Chicago, where it will be interred."

Due to a Bear Raid and a Rush to Take Profits.

UNION PACIFIC THE LEADER

On Very Heavy Trading it Advanced to 112, but at the Close it Showed Only a Small Net Gain at 109 5-8.

New York, October 25.—Union Pacific sold as high as 112 today and the aggregate dealings in that stock footed up 360,000 shares. These astonishing occurrences were the central facts from which all other radiated, and there is little left to say of the market except in terms of wonder at its dimensions and its erratic variety. The final break was from a rush to take profits on the day's enormous trading and on a bear raid.

There has been a larger number of share-owners on the day's stock dealings than on any day there was today of the Union Pacific. In fact, that stock itself broke that record on April 24, 1901, when 652,800 shares were sold on the stock exchange. The world now knows that competitive buying in retaliation for the effort to control Northern Pacific was the cause of that titanic struggle in the open market. On April 15, 1902, there were 864,500 shares of Southern railway dealt in on the stock exchange pending the settlement of control of Louisville and Nashville in the general interest of the Southern railway field. With these exceptions today's dealings in Union Pacific probably form a record. The published section that the retirement of the Oregon Short line participating bonds had been determined on was a leading cause of this extraordinary movement. The truth of this report could not be learned from any official sources. It was assumed, in spite of emphatic official disclaimers, that a settlement of the Northern Securities dispute and a community of interests in the trans-continental railroad world was involved. The buoyant rise in St. Paul was regarded as corroborative of this assumption. The market was subjected to enormous profit taking throughout the day, and the result was a very irregular and occasional weakness. The engagement of gold for export increased the burden of selling, but the confidence in the market did not seem to be impaired at once by these developments, and inactivity was taxed to pick out new points for aggressive buying. But when attempts were made to take profits on the day's trading, the market was subjected to a sharp decline.

The day's most consecutive losses were the rule, proving to be a sharp decline in the market. The closing was decidedly weak and without recovery. Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value, $11,047,000.

United States bonds were unchanged on call. Money on call steady at 1 1/2 per cent; closing bid at 1 1/2; offered at 2; time loans easy and bid; 60 days 3 per cent; 90 days and six months 2 1/2; prime mercantile paper 4 1/2 per cent. COTTON—Heavy offerings from the south and fears of political complications arising out of the Russian outrage, prevented full response in Liverpool to improvement of yesterday, but heavy rains in Texas and prediction of a cold wave behind the clouds, caused a stiffening of all markets after the opening. It was not, however, until 1 o'clock, when the first installment of the glutted market became really active, and from that time on there has been a steady improvement, which leaves prices at least about 18 points higher than the lowest and 13 points better than yesterday. The census bureau gave only the number of bales ginned from ninety-six counties in the cotton belt, representing about 4 per cent of the total production. These counties show 48.16 per cent more cotton ginned to October 18 last year. If my calculation, based on such an insignificant part of the whole crop, can have any value, it would point to a total of about 5,500,000 bales ginned this year, against 3,703,000 last year and 5,683,000 two years ago, all in 500-pound bales. While no one would pretend that such figures can prove anything in a crop comparison, still the fact that the indications, as far as they go, point to a total ginned almost two years ago, was considered as disposing of the common prediction that 7,000,000 bales had already been ginned to this extent. Today's report may be considered a bullish argument, and was immediately so construed by a little coterie, who have only recently taken a pessimistic view of the market. Even the leading bear, in his comment on the bureau figures, leaves ground for the suspicion that he also is out of his shorts and is not disinclined to see the market rally somewhat, even if only to put out a new line of shorts at higher level. Liverpool is expected to come about 9 higher tomorrow. There is an active element which is working to put prices up. Against this, however, there is the sort of spot produced by the Russian affair, and the possibility that the south has not yet completed its task of disposing of accumulations of the past month. It is not necessary to analyze the census report to discover how valueless it is as a guide, either as to the amount already ginned or to the future of the crop. The figures reported upon, 12 are in Tennessee, which contains only 24 counties producing more than 1,000 bales each, while Texas is represented by only 9 out of a total of 173 cotton producing counties. Arkansas figures to the extent of 23 out of 72, Mississippi 5 out of 74; Alabama 5 out of 66 and the only prominent state which presents a decent showing is Georgia, with 34 out of 126 counties. If daily bulletins were issued at today's rate, it would take 25 days before all the returns would be in.

SPICES.—Dealings continued on a tremendous scale of power of absorption in the face of persistent heavy realizing. Transactions embraced so wide a range as to render unnecessary particularization except in the case of a few of the special features. In a number of cases in the leaders new high records on the movement were established. The influence upon the market was the increasing insistent belief that favorable developments in late trading activities were in progress. Union and Southern Pacific followed substantial advances in the London market by further sharp gains in the local market. The first mentioned rose an extreme 3 1/2 on enormous transactions. The market ignored the news of the day, including an announcement of the impending export to Paris of about $1,250,000 in gold and reports that Paris and Berlin were bidding in the open market for gold and offering special inducements for the metal. In the last hour recessions from the best figures occurred, ranging from 1 to 2 per cent. Steel preferred fell to within a fraction of yesterday's closing, and this was true of Union Pacific, Consolidated Gas, St. Paul, Erie, Northern, and other issues. Colorado Fuel and Iron, Tennessee Coal and Iron, Metropolitan Street Railway and a number of the railway equipment issues reacted materially at the close slightly fractional recoveries took place, but the market finished feverish and uneasy on a violent moment. In late trading addresses houses were inclined to buy stocks, arguing that except in unlikely event, some of the developments in foreign situation, London would probably open up. Government bonds unchanged. Railroad and other bonds sympathized to a partial extent with the late reaction in stocks. Total sales 2,006,209.
